Burglars take $1,456 here

Burglars took $1,456 from Sikeston Bus Agency, 901 S.Main St., between 10 and 11:55 p.m. Sunday.

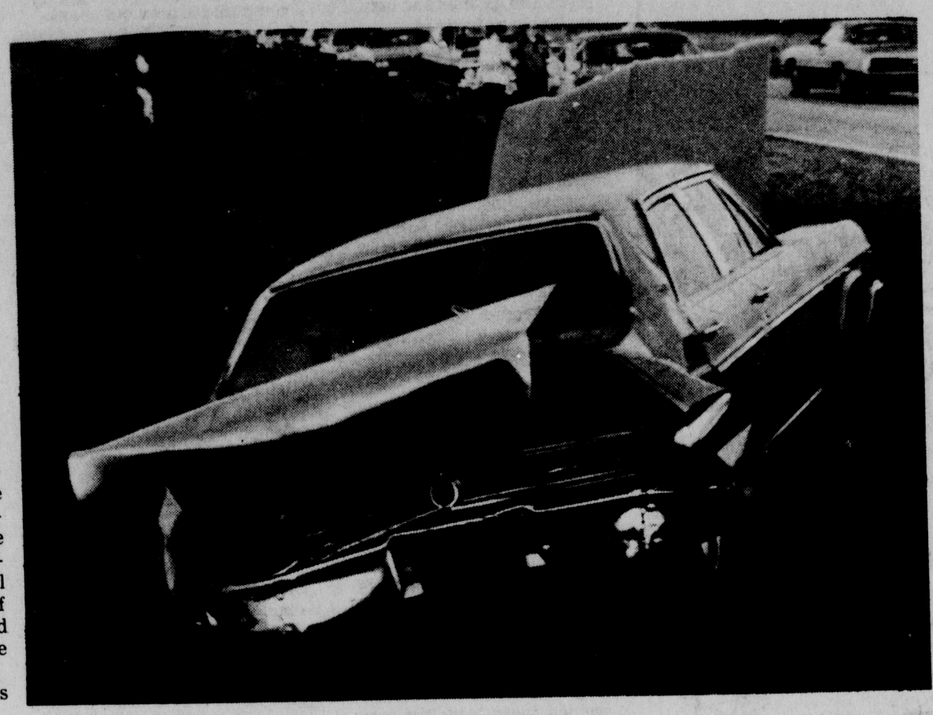

Police said the burglars broke into the building through a freght office window and took $120 from a cash drawer and $1,336 from a floor safe. Also taken were a number of bus tickets.

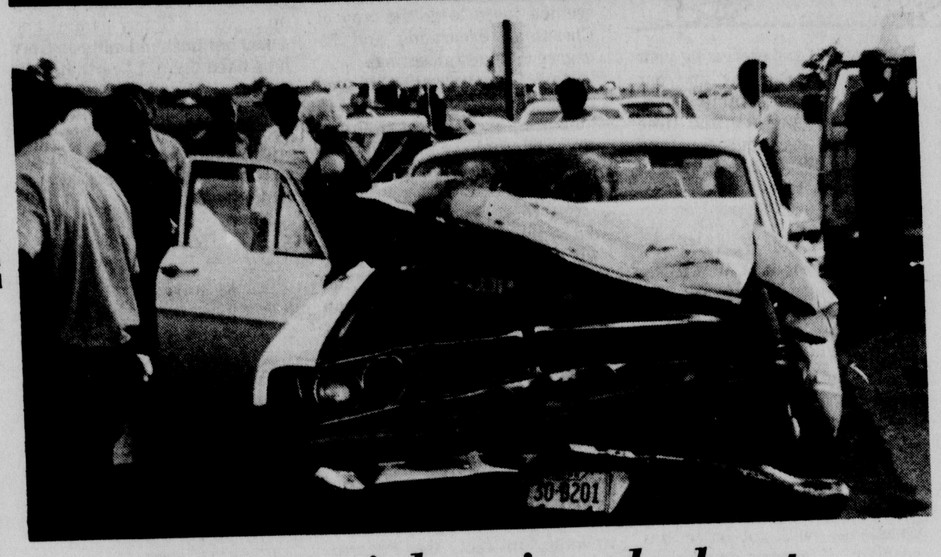

Mail recovered

BERNIE — Several pieces of mail, believed stoled in a burglary at the Bernie post office Saturday night, were recoveredsometime Sunday on the lawn of a home located on Murray Lane in Sikeston.

According to the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department, several federal tax refund checks were among the items taken from the post office.

The thieves apparently entered through the roof and forced open several post office boxes.

Dexter girl seriously hurt

Linda Toombs, 17, of Dexter, a passenger, in the car in the top photograph was seriously injured in a two-car traffic accident that occurred at 7:20 p.m. Saturday on Highway 60 four miles west of Sikeston. The accident occurred when the driver, Claude Toombs, 19, of Dexter, attempted to make a left turn and the vehicle was struck from behind by the car in the bottom photograph, which was driven by John Hubbard, 44, of Union City, Tenn. Three persons in the Hubbard vehicle received minor injuries.

Legislature fails to meet deadline

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Legislature failed Sunday night to meet a deadline for approving appropriation bills, leaving a special session or rule suspension as the only remaining ways for the money measures to reach the governor's desk.

The self-imposed midnight deadline expired as the House and Senate remained deadlocked on a funding plan for state universities and increased aid to junior colleges.

"We either suspend the rules or we don't pass the bill," said House Speaker Richard Rabbitt. "We tried to get a compromise. We didn't so we'll suspend the rules."

That may not be as easy as it sounds, since some senators say a special session may be needed to clear up the money matters.

"There are all sorts of possibilities, and a special session is one of them," said Senate President Pro Tem William Cason. The Senate leader would not comment on whether he'd support suspending the rules to permit passage of the appropriations bills, but was overheard telling Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Norman Merrell that it does not speak very well for the Democratically controlled legislature to need a special session to pass the appropriations bills.

Merrell and four other members of the Senate conference committee had trooped over to the House side of the Capitol several times late Sunday but the House would not retreat and adjourned a few mintues before the 12 a.m. deadline. The Senate quickly followed suit.

At issue is the House desire to fund the nine state universities on a straight per-student-hour formula, while the Senate wants the Coordinating Board for Higher Edcation's plan of giving more money to schools offering courses which cost more to provide.

Another part of the dispute centers around the Senate's desire to provide a $3.2 million increase in state aid to junior colleges, while the lower chamber supports only a $1.2 million boost.

Since the appropriations bills must be taken in numerical order, the college funding dispute must first be resolved before the legislature can get to consideration of $52 million worth of capital improvements and another measure to fund the General Assembly.

The legislature ran into this same problem last year, and handled it by extending the working day by an additional 17 hours. Rabbitt had said several weeks ago that the deadline would be met this session.

The deadline is designed to provide the legislature with a week's time to consider matters other than those regarding money.

Although Rabbitt indicated the House would readily suspend the rules to approve the money bills, some senators said a special session was the only way out.

"How can we come to an agreement in the last week of the session if we haven't reached one so far," said Sen. Robert Young, a member of the conference committee. "We'll have to have a special session for an agreement. If you suspend the rules, it would be unfair to the committee."

The legislature conducted a special session last December to increase the ceiling on usury rates.

Howell sentence reversed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Life sentences for two convicted murderers were reversed today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Robert C. Howell, who was convicted of killing one person and wounding another in New Madrid in November 1972, was given a new trial after the high court found illegal search and seizure of evidence.

In the other case, Lawrence Baker of Kansas City had his punishment reversed after the court said his serving three sentences one after the other was unfair.

Baker and another man were convicted of robbing a Kansas City gas station and killing two attendants in November 1971. Baker was given two life sentences and a 99-year penalty.

In a 4-3 decision, the court said there was no showing of probable cause for Howell's arrest nine hours after the victims were found in a car on a New Madrid street. It said the trial court erred in not removing evidence taken during the arrest.

The court said there was no probable cause until after Howell's hand was tested to see if he had been holding a gun and his clothing was checked for marks.

In a dissenting opinion, Judge James Finch said another hearing should be held to find if there was probable cause instead of ordering a new trial.

In a 7-0 decision, the court said the trial judge discriminated against Baker by ordering his three sentences to be served in a row rather than at the same time. Thus, they ruled a state law unconstitutional which says that a person convicted of two or more offenses must serve penalties for them one after the other.

The court found that the law requires unequal treatment for different offenders and wasn't based on a legitimate purpose.

It ordered that Baker be resentenced.

4 burglaries solved

Police today announced they have solved four burglaries with the arrest of two Sikeston youths on Friday and that a fifth burglary was solved when police discovered the alleged thief was already charged with another crime.

Police said Michael Edward Carey, 20, of 222 N. West St. and Tony Lee Raines, 17, of 209 N. Handy St. have been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with the four burglaries.

They were arrested Friday morning in connection with burglaries of two homes in Scott County and two in Sikeston.

In connection with the other burglary, Detective Lt. Jack Pattersonsaid he has recovered a gun and piggy bank taken from the Clyde Wilson home, 1 Hackberry Lane, on May 4. A watch that was taken was not recovered.

Patterson identified the alleged burglar as Calvin Chapman, 1031 N. Ranney, St., who has already been charged with a Feb. 10 burglary at the Ross Lemons home, 1002 N. Ranney.

Detective Sgt. Dan Hinton said the four homes burglarized by Carey and Raines were the Larry Boley home, located near Tanner, where watches and rings were taken; the Carl Eftink home, located south of Scott City, where watches, rings, a calculator and two cameras were stolen; the Larry Moore home, 3 Kirkwood Drive, where watches, rings and necklaces were taken; and the Elwood Kinder Jr. home, Foust Drive, where two tackle boxes and a rod and reel were taken.

Hinton said the youths were caught after they were allegedly seen inside the Boley home by witness who wrote down the license number of their vehicle and descriptions of the two.

They were released after posting bond of $1,000 each to guarantee their appearance in court on charges of burglary and stealing.

Also working the case with Hinton were Scott County Sheriff's Deputies Gerald Inman and David Richbourg.

Howell sentence reversed

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Life sentences for two convicted murderers were reversed today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Robert C. Howell, who was convicted of killing one person and wounding another in New Madrid in November 1972, was given a new trial after the high court found illegal search and seizure of evidence.

4 burglaries solved

Police today announced they have solved four burglaries with the arrest of two Sikeston youths on Friday and that a fifth burglary was solved when police discovered the alleged thief was already charged with another crime.

Police said Michael Edward Carey, 20, of 222 N. West St. and Tony Lee Raines, 17, of 209 N. Handy St. have been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with the four burglaries.

They were arrested Friday morning in connection with burglaries of two homes in Scott County and two in Sikeston.

In connection with the other burglary, Detective Lt. Jack Pattersonsaid he has recovered a gun and piggy bank taken from the Clyde Wilson home, 1 Hackberry Lane, on May 4. A watch that was taken was not recovered.

Patterson identified the alleged burglar as Calvin Chapman, 1031 N. Ranney, St., who has already been charged with a Feb. 10 burglary at the Ross Lemons home, 1002 N. Ranney.

Detective Sgt. Dan Hinton said the four homes burglarized by Carey and Raines were the Larry Boley home, located near Tanner, where watches and rings were taken; the Carl Eftink home, located south of Scott City, where watches, rings, a calculator and two cameras were stolen; the Larry Moore home, 3 Kirkwood Drive, where watches, rings and necklaces were taken; and the Elwood Kinder Jr. home, Foust Drive, where two tackle boxes and a rod and reel were taken.

Hinton said the youths were caught after they were allegedly seen inside the Boley home by witness who wrote down the license number of their vehicle and descriptions of the two.

They were released after posting bond of $1,000 each to guarantee their appearance in court on charges of burglary and stealing.

Also working the case with Hinton were Scott County Sheriff's Deputies Gerald Inman and David Richbourg.

MAYAGUEZ AFTERMATH

President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger have both moved swiftly to try and capitalize on the political fallout of the Mayaguez affair. The President rejected a new isolationism and has again proclaimed that the U.S. will honor its pledge to defend South Korea. Meanwhile Kissinger, in Europe, was reaffirming the U.S. commitment to West Berlin specifically and to Western Europe generally.

This is all to the good. The world must believe that the U.S. will to act has not been shattered by the trauma of our southeast Asia defeats and that we are not in fact turning toward a new isolationism. This is so self-evidently important that we are sure it must have b een the major, and not the minor, consideration as the administration debated its response to the Cambodian seizure of the ship. At that psychological moment we desperately needed something that would give some credence to our international word. The President certainly made this point when he said in an interview with European correspondents that his handling of the Mayaguez incident "should be a firm assurance that the United States is capable and has the will to act in emergencies and challenges." The same satisfaction came through in Dr. Kissinger's reply to reporter Marvin Kalb, who asked for his comment on criticism that the U.S. had used force against Cambodia too quickly: "Come on, Marvin, break down. Maybe we did something right. Statistically we are bound to do something right once in a while."

We'd prefer to think, however, that the Mayaguez will not go down in history merely as a statistical aberration. The administration action was right and scored a definite plus, but it should also be remembered that the real test of U.S. intention and will is not a confrontation with a military pygmy, such as Cambodia. Far too much damage has been done to our honor and world image for it to be restored as simply at that. Other, far more significant tests are likely to come to us as the Communist world seeks to determine whether the American character now represents mush or steel. Since one of those tests could well be in Korea, Congress could reinforce the Mayaguez fallout and President Ford's words if it would go on record, in the name of the American people, with its own pledge that the U.S. commitment to South Korea is still good.

POLLUTIONCONTROL COUNTDOWN

Ten years from now the United States is either going to have a lot of clean plants or a lot fewer plants, say some observers.

The often painful choice between environmental quality and increased productivity has been confronting the nation for some time, of course. What has given the matter new urgency is the release by the Ford administration of $9 billion in previously authorized funds for the Environmental Protection Agency, coupled with the EPA's fast- approaching 1977 deadline for compliance.

The ostrichlike attitude of some companies that the EPA will make exceptions is fast disappearing as they realize they will either have to fish or cut bait.

"The U.S. simply can't afford to risk building plants that may be closed down by government agencies," says Thomas P. O'Boyle, president of the Ecodyne Corp., which is involved in the water and waste treatment field.

Private industry, as well as municipalities and utilities, are already clamoring for the most efficient and up-to-date equipment. A study by the marketing firm of Frost & Sullivan forecasts that spending on pollution control equipment and services will double within the next 10 years.

GOODBYE DDT, HELLO BT

In recent years, armies of spruce budworms, gypsy moths and tussock moths — each as formidable as Pharoah's plague of locusts — have been attacking the nation's forests.

Time was when the problem could be handled by aerial spraying with DDT. But while it controlled the pests and saved trees, DDT was also harmful to other insects and animals and was banned in 1967.

Control of the winged raiders became something of a scramble after that, with different regions using different techniques with uncertain degrees of effectiveness at best.

Now comes the news that chemists have isolated one of nature's own organisms that could be mass produced and harnessed in fighting the forest pests .

Bacillus Thuringiensis, or "BT," is a bacterium that is deadly only to lepidopterous insects, the order that includes moths, and is not harmful to any other form of life. Moreover, birds and other predators are said to thrive on larvae that have ingested BTs.

In Maine, where five-million acres of forest are infested with spruce budworm, the state's Department of Conservation has asked the legislature for $13 million to spray the trees with BTs. The U.S. Forest Service has approved the use of "Dipel," manufactured by Abbot Laboratories, as a BT for effective spraying.

However, any BT, somewhat like any penicillin, is said to be able to do the job.

MIGHT BE GREATER DETERRENT

To many people it seems that the Legislature, instead of devoting so much time to whether or not to impose the death senstnec in Missouri as a crime deterrent, should enact a law that means a criminal will serve a sentence when senteneced. Too often now, a term sentence, be it one or 100 years, doesn't mean that. The criminal goes free on parole or pardon after a short time.

It the criminal knew that a term-sentence would have to be served to the full extent, it might be a greater deterrent than even a possible death sentence.

NO ROOM FOR GUILT ON VIETNAM 'BABYLIFT'

One thing this country could do without very well is the carping criticism directed by some people at the Vietnam "babylift" operation.

The critics were in vocal evidence at an informal meeting called in Washington the other week by Rep. Paul E. Tsongas (D-Mass.)) in hopes of mustering congressional support for an appeal to President Ford to expand the airlift.

One South Vietnamese woman involved in refugee work accused the airlift promoters of being on a "guilt trip."

According to Rep. William A. Steiger (R-Wis.) , one of six congressmen attending the meeting, bringing some South Vietnamese out and leaving others behind smacked of "elitism."

Especially regrettable is the fact that blacks in the audience were among those questioning the motives or wisdom of concerned people trying to resuce at least a few of the thousands of abandoned biracial products of America's military presence in Vietnam.

It is one thing for the South Vietnamese to consider the airlift as a "slap in the face," as Rep. Steiger contended some of them do, or for President Thieu to label Americans "traitors" for not doing for South South Vietnam what South Vietham has been unwilling to do for itself in the 20 years of its existence.

It may also be another thing to point out that there are many orphaned children right here in the United States who are in need of homes.

But for Americans to inanely applaud allegations of "guilt trips" or "elitism" against such a purely humanitarian effort as the baby lift is little short of despicable.

SHED FALSE ASSUMPTIONS

The energy crisis, like virtually every problem that has confronted this nation, has produced its own set of misconceptions. One of the fuel supply misconceptions has been that the shortage is temporary and can be solved by conserving energy and allocating its use. While it is true that using energy wisely will help, it most emphastically will not solve the problem of energy deficiency. Only greater supply will do that.

Mr. Paul Wollstadt, a consultant to the American Petroleum institute, has said that allocation of available fuels may be necessary but must be considered only as "...a means of sharing scarcity...." The energy situation in the United States will improve dramatically only if certain steps are taken. These include reversing or slowing down the substitution of oil for coal, permitting the use of distillate and residual oil with high sulfur content at times and in areas where such use would not constitute a danger to public health and putting much greater emphasis on using all available forms of energy more carefully and more efficiently. In order to increase the nation's energy supplies for the next several years, the trans-Alaska pipeline must be built; gas exploration on the Outer Continental Shelf must be expanded; petroleum operations off the California coast must be resumed; natural gas field prices will have to be deregulated; deepwater port facilities for large tankers must be developed; and additional domestic refinery capacity must be built. For the long term, the development of oil shale, tar sands and gasified and liquiefied coal must go forward.

The sooner we shed false assumptions and get on with the serious business of establishing long-term objectives and goals, the faster the nation's energy weakness will be corrected. Until major steps along these positive lines are taken--and congressional or federal administrative action is required in most cases--our current energy problems will only become worse instead of better.

XXX

A LIGHT SIDE OF THE NEWS

Give the people light and they will not only find their way, as the familiar Scripps-Howard motto has it, they will be safer, the country will save energy and it will be good for business to boot.

We're speaking of light on the nation's streets and highways, which for a time during the height of the Arab oil embargo seemed fated to go the way of Christmas decoration and 72-degree thermostat settings.

Many conservation-minded people, in any event, pointed to "unnecessary" street lighting as an example of the country's misuse of its limited energy supplies.

But those communities that did begin turning off their lights when the energy crisis suddenly broke upon them are having second thoughts, says American City magazine. They found that it cost them more in the long run in higher crime rates, reduced business activity and more severe accidents.

On the other hand, cities that are switching to improved lighting, especially brighter, more efficient sodium lamps, are experiencing just the reverse. In fact, the Federal Energy Commission is urging communities to upgrade, not extinguish, their lighting systems.

For example, New York City's program to install 86,000 new sodium lights throughout its five boroughs is expected to provide almost 50 per cent more light to help reduce street crime and yet save more than a million gallons of oil annually.

Even a small city like Salem, Ore., is netting a 42 per cent increase in lighting levels and a 42 per cent cut in energy used, says the magazine.

According to the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau, an organization that compiles statistics on public lighting, stores in Evansville, Ind., recorded a 21 per cent increases in sales after a well-lighted downtown walkway was opened.

Downtown business activity in Baton Rouge, La., increased more than 25 per cent after relighting.

In Plainfield, N.J., with the installation of new downtown street lights, burglaries were nearly halved and robberies dropped more than 65 per cent compared to previous years.

Despite the obvious benefits, says the bureau, fewer than 100 of the nation's 18,000 incorporated towns and cities are considered to have adequate lighting.

Will Makes Waves: Strong New Breed Labor Chief Takes Over Politically Sharp Garment Union

NEW YORK — There was an ancient time in this town when David Dubinsky's pins and needles union couldn't fix a traffic ticket or prevent its business agents from getting their heads smashed. Then this International Ladies Garment Workers Union, center of the $30 billion cloak, suit, dress, brassiere and corset, underwear and children's garments and a thousand accessories industry, invented modern labor political action.

Then it became the mother of American Presidents -- all the way from Franklin Roosevelt to Lyndon Johnson and the almost President Hubert Humphrey. It helped swing states to FDR. It introduced a new boy in town -- Jack Kennedy. And it permitted Lyndon Johnson's vice presidential nomination. Or he wouldn't have gotten it.

And after 34 years president Dave Dubinsky retired -- but not until the "ILG," which once couldn't pay its electric bills, amassed over a billion dollars in David Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan bank. And Dubinsky's successor, former semi-pro baseball player Lou Stulberg, now 75 and ill, succeeded him and retired last month thus ending generations of leadership born abroad in the last century.

And the other night the new breed labor man, ILG president-elect Chick Chaikin took over. In a youth-conscious nation he's upper middle age. But at 57, this U.S Air Force veteran, American-born and oriented, a lawyer by education, a daring and imaginative organizer, is not only of the "new" but of the younger breed.

On the night of June 3, when the ILG celebrated its 75th anniversary, there was a telegram of congratulations from President Ford and many a Senator, governor and mayor. and New York's De Democratic Gov. Carey and the city's Mayor Beame and presidental hopeful Scoop Jackson (who tore a hole in his own tight schedule) came to mix and pay political respect.

Among national leaders and the national media, stocky, blackhaired Chick Chaikin is still obscure. But not for long. He's an activist. He's a Rooseveltian. He's a working-class type orator, contemptuous of his political opponents, most of whom are Republicans. He and JFK's Larry O'Brien together teethed politically in Massachusetts, operating out of Boston – Chaikin's first real labor power base.

Chick Chaikin is no provincial. He knows the "lower Southwest" meaning Dallas, and Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, as he knows his own front door. He will wait out of respect for the union's legends and legendry, living and dead, to settle a bit before he kicks up dust.

He knows the ILG was the first to use big political money and organization where it counts. He knows what it means to have "third lines" on the ballot such as the Fusion Party and the Liberal Party. Into which the ILG poured political pins, needles and big money during scores of campaigns.

Chick Chaikin knows that the ILG, during this century's first two decades was responsible for creating the cadres, friends, philosophy and atmosphere which later became the New Deal. He knows how this paid off in the White House and how the entrance to the Oval Office was a revolving door for the garment workers' leaders.

And he knows that what Dubinsky accomplished and the ILG won was achieved on the legislative front. That will be his front -- locally, regionally and statewide as well as national. He will put the old New Deal machinery in new high fashion gear. He's a mover. And he will roll up his own "firsts."

Lest it be forgotten, the ladies' garment workers union was the first to setup departments for education, health, politics, industrial engineering and intercontinental action.

It was the first to buy a Pennsylvania mountain top as a union summer resort--and the first to win a 35-hour, five-day work week.

And it was the first to be invaded by Josef Stalin's global Communist network. That was exactly 50 years ago. The American Communist Party in June 1925 set up the "Joint Action Committee" and attempted to take over the ILG. Moscow saw its potential. The fight was bloody. This was Stalin's first invasion of labor abroad -- and his American politburo threw in everything including the forerunners of Murder Inc. and the Mafia.

The union survived, even in hard times. Today, despite the recession, it is politically poised, financially stable, strong in membership (over 400,000) and its elders are on the sidelines.

To the nation, though there are garment factories and stores in a thousand communities, last Tuesday night's 75th anniversary banquet celebration here was just another hotel grand ballroom dinner. But this Chick Chaikin is a "do-er." He wants to rack up some firsts of his own. Watch this new boy in town. He has a power base now. He's an aggressive liberal. In a while he'll shake up national politics.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: DEA Chief Forced Out

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — We began a series of columns last January exposing malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance inside the Drug Enforcement Administration. We charged that internal dissension had crippled the agency and had weakened the war against narcotics.

Our articles triggered a series of events which has culminated in the forced resignation of Administrator John Bartels. He was asked to resign by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold Tyler.

Bartels resisted at first, saying he needed time " to sleep on it." He immediately got in tough with one of his predecessors, Myle Ambrose, now an influential Washington attorney, who phoned the White House in Bartels' behalf.

But the White House refused to save Bartels. The next morning, he met again with Tyler and asked for still more time to decide. A few hours later, Tyler notified Bartels that his time was up.

Our sources say Bartels was bounced to take the sting out of hearing scheduled this week by Sen. Henry Jackson, D.-Wash. His subcommittee has been investigating the charges we raised in our columns. We disclosed, for example, that:

-- Top narcotics officials had been so busy investigating one another that they had little time to cope with the dope dealers.

-- Despite record high budgets, DEA had been unable to stem the flow of heroin into the country. An estimated 125,000 new addicts, we reported, became hooked in the past year alone.

– The handling of internal corruption cases was sloppy. We quoted from a confidential management study, which warned that the number of unresolved corruption cases leaves "the agency in an embarrassing situation."

– We reported that corrupt DEA agents had been caught dealing in the drugs they were supposed to be suppressing.

– As early as 1960, the drug enforcement apparatus maintained close ties with the Central Intelligence Agency. DEA has 64 former CIA employes on its payroll and another 13 narcotics agents were trained by the CIA at its supersecret counterespionage school, we reported.

-- And we revealed that the drug agents maintained love traps for the CIA in New York City and San Francisco. Foreign diplomats were lured into these apartments by prostitutes in the pay of the CIA, which filmed the sexual adventures through hidden one-way mirrors and late tried to blackmail the victims into becoming informants.

We began our investigation of the DEA in November 1974, two months before we published the first story. Our associate, Bob Owens, confronted the DEA with charges that Bartels was covering up an investigation of an assistant, Vincent Promuto.

Thereafter, DEA kept a sharp eye on us. One internal memo warned that we were "familiar" with "the Promuto matter." Later, Bartels drafted a four-page , single-spaced response to one of our columns and ordered every DEA employe to read it.

From Thailand to Turkey, DEA agents were also instructed to make sure Bartels' opus was published in the local newspapers. The DEA office in Thailand gave up, explaining in a memo that "none of the Bangkok newspapers subscribe to Jack Anderson's columns." But in most places, Bartels, orders were meticulously obeyed. Responding to our charges, it seemed, had priority overfighting the drug smugglers.

The Seattle regional director assured Bartels that "all supervisors were held responsible to insure that each employe read and initialed" the four-page opus. In Boston, the regional director "personally read Mr. Bartels' letterto all Boston regional office agents." In Detroit, the regional director boasted that he had submitted the letter to the Detroit Free Press under his own signature.

And the chief of the NewYork drug task force wrote to Bartels: "We have read several artricles by columnist JackAnderson which have been less than complimentary to the Drug Enforcemnt Administration ... Your accomplishments and professionalism are deserving of accolades not criticism."

The American people will be able to judge the DEA for themselves, however, after Sen. Jackson has concluded his hearings.

BARRED BAR: Sen. John Sparkman, D.-Ala., and Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho, happen to have adjoining hideaways in the Capitol Building, linked by a bathroom-bar which could be entered from either side.

But the 75-year-old Sparkman, by right of seniority, outranks the 50-year-old Church. As the Senate Foreign Relations chairman, sparkman pleaded that he needed a private bar to entertain visiting potentates.

So orders went out to board up Church's entrance and leave Sparkman with his own private toilet an boozing facilities. The carpenters, however, got their directions mixed up and boarded Sparkman's side of the fancy bathroom.

But Church didn't enjoy the unexpected luxury for long. One day, he found his new bathroom-bar sealed off. Sparkman belatedly had expropriated the facilities, as evidence that the seniority system is still intact in the Senate.

GOODBYE DDT, HELLO BT

In recent years, armies of spruce budworms, gypsy moths and tussock moths — each as formidable as Pharoah's plague of locusts — have been attacking the nation's forests.

Time was when the problem could be handled by aerial spraying with DDT. But while it controlled the pests and saved trees, DDT was also harmful to other insects and animals and was banned in 1967.

Control of the winged raiders became something of a scramble after that, with different regions using different techniques with uncertain degrees of effectiveness at best.

Now comes the news that chemists have isolated one of nature's own organisms that could be mass produced and harnessed in fighting the forest pests .

Bacillus Thuringiensis, or "BT," is a bacterium that is deadly only to lepidopterous insects, the order that includes moths, and is not harmful to any other form of life. Moreover, birds and other predators are said to thrive on larvae that have ingested BTs.

In Maine, where five-million acres of forest are infested with spruce budworm, the state's Department of Conservation has asked the legislature for $13 million to spray the trees with BTs. The U.S. Forest Service has approved the use of "Dipel," manufactured by Abbot Laboratories, as a BT for effective spraying.

However, any BT, somewhat like any penicillin, is said to be able to do the job.

MIGHT BE GREATER DETERRENT

To many people it seems that the Legislature, instead of devoting so much time to whether or not to impose the death senstnec in Missouri as a crime deterrent, should enact a law that means a criminal will serve a sentence when senteneced. Too often now, a term sentence, be it one or 100 years, doesn't mean that. The criminal goes free on parole or pardon after a short time.

It the criminal knew that a term-sentence would have to be served to the full extent, it might be a greater deterrent than even a possible death sentence.

NO ROOM FOR GUILT ON VIETNAM 'BABYLIFT'

One thing this country could do without very well is the carping criticism directed by some people at the Vietnam "babylift" operation.

The critics were in vocal evidence at an informal meeting called in Washington the other week by Rep. Paul E. Tsongas (D-Mass.)) in hopes of mustering congressional support for an appeal to President Ford to expand the airlift.

One South Vietnamese woman involved in refugee work accused the airlift promoters of being on a "guilt trip."

According to Rep. William A. Steiger (R-Wis.) , one of six congressmen attending the meeting, bringing some South Vietnamese out and leaving others behind smacked of "elitism."

Especially regrettable is the fact that blacks in the audience were among those questioning the motives or wisdom of concerned people trying to resuce at least a few of the thousands of abandoned biracial products of America's military presence in Vietnam.

It is one thing for the South Vietnamese to consider the airlift as a "slap in the face," as Rep. Steiger contended some of them do, or for President Thieu to label Americans "traitors" for not doing for South South Vietnam what South Vietham has been unwilling to do for itself in the 20 years of its existence.

It may also be another thing to point out that there are many orphaned children right here in the United States who are in need of homes.

But for Americans to inanely applaud allegations of "guilt trips" or "elitism" against such a purely humanitarian effort as the baby lift is little short of despicable.

SHED FALSE ASSUMPTIONS

The energy crisis, like virtually every problem that has confronted this nation, has produced its own set of misconceptions. One of the fuel supply misconceptions has been that the shortage is temporary and can be solved by conserving energy and allocating its use. While it is true that using energy wisely will help, it most emphastically will not solve the problem of energy deficiency. Only greater supply will do that.

Mr. Paul Wollstadt, a consultant to the American Petroleum institute, has said that allocation of available fuels may be necessary but must be considered only as "...a means of sharing scarcity...." The energy situation in the United States will improve dramatically only if certain steps are taken. These include reversing or slowing down the substitution of oil for coal, permitting the use of distillate and residual oil with high sulfur content at times and in areas where such use would not constitute a danger to public health and putting much greater emphasis on using all available forms of energy more carefully and more efficiently. In order to increase the nation's energy supplies for the next several years, the trans-Alaska pipeline must be built; gas exploration on the Outer Continental Shelf must be expanded; petroleum operations off the California coast must be resumed; natural gas field prices will have to be deregulated; deepwater port facilities for large tankers must be developed; and additional domestic refinery capacity must be built. For the long term, the development of oil shale, tar sands and gasified and liquiefied coal must go forward.

The sooner we shed false assumptions and get on with the serious business of establishing long-term objectives and goals, the faster the nation's energy weakness will be corrected. Until major steps along these positive lines are taken--and congressional or federal administrative action is required in most cases--our current energy problems will only become worse instead of better.

XXX

A LIGHT SIDE OF THE NEWS

Give the people light and they will not only find their way, as the familiar Scripps-Howard motto has it, they will be safer, the country will save energy and it will be good for business to boot.

We're speaking of light on the nation's streets and highways, which for a time during the height of the Arab oil embargo seemed fated to go the way of Christmas decoration and 72-degree thermostat settings.

Many conservation-minded people, in any event, pointed to "unnecessary" street lighting as an example of the country's misuse of its limited energy supplies.

But those communities that did begin turning off their lights when the energy crisis suddenly broke upon them are having second thoughts, says American City magazine. They found that it cost them more in the long run in higher crime rates, reduced business activity and more severe accidents.

On the other hand, cities that are switching to improved lighting, especially brighter, more efficient sodium lamps, are experiencing just the reverse. In fact, the Federal Energy Commission is urging communities to upgrade, not extinguish, their lighting systems.

For example, New York City's program to install 86,000 new sodium lights throughout its five boroughs is expected to provide almost 50 per cent more light to help reduce street crime and yet save more than a million gallons of oil annually.

Even a small city like Salem, Ore., is netting a 42 per cent increase in lighting levels and a 42 per cent cut in energy used, says the magazine.

According to the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau, an organization that compiles statistics on public lighting, stores in Evansville, Ind., recorded a 21 per cent increases in sales after a well-lighted downtown walkway was opened.

Downtown business activity in Baton Rouge, La., increased more than 25 per cent after relighting.

In Plainfield, N.J., with the installation of new downtown street lights, burglaries were nearly halved and robberies dropped more than 65 per cent compared to previous years.

Despite the obvious benefits, says the bureau, fewer than 100 of the nation's 18,000 incorporated towns and cities are considered to have adequate lighting.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: DEA Chief Forced Out

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — We began a series of columns last January exposing malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance inside the Drug Enforcement Administration. We charged that internal dissension had crippled the agency and had weakened the war against narcotics.

Our articles triggered a series of events which has culminated in the forced resignation of Administrator John Bartels. He was asked to resign by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold Tyler.

Bartels resisted at first, saying he needed time " to sleep on it." He immediately got in tough with one of his predecessors, Myle Ambrose, now an influential Washington attorney, who phoned the White House in Bartels' behalf.

But the White House refused to save Bartels. The next morning, he met again with Tyler and asked for still more time to decide. A few hours later, Tyler notified Bartels that his time was up.

Our sources say Bartels was bounced to take the sting out of hearing scheduled this week by Sen. Henry Jackson, D.-Wash. His subcommittee has been investigating the charges we raised in our columns. We disclosed, for example, that:

-- Top narcotics officials had been so busy investigating one another that they had little time to cope with the dope dealers.

-- Despite record high budgets, DEA had been unable to stem the flow of heroin into the country. An estimated 125,000 new addicts, we reported, became hooked in the past year alone.

-- The handling of internal corruption cases was sloppy. We quoted from a confidential management study, which warned that the number of unresolved corruption cases leaves "the agency in an embarrassing situation."

-- We reported that corrupt DEA agents had been caught dealing in the drugs they were supposed to be suppressing.

-- As early as 1960, the drug enforcement apparatus maintained close ties with the Central Intelligence Agency. DEA has 64 former CIA employes on its payroll and another 13 narcotics agents were trained by the CIA at its supersecret counterespionage school, we reported.

-- And we revealed that the drug agents maintained love traps for the CIA in New York City and San Francisco. Foreign diplomats were lured into these apartments by prostitutes in the pay of the CIA, which filmed the sexual adventures through hidden one-way mirrors and late tried to blackmail the victims into becoming informants.

We began our investigation of the DEA in November 1974, two months before we published the first story. Our associate, Bob Owens, confronted the DEA with charges that Bartels was covering up an investigation of an assistant, Vincent Promuto.

Thereafter, DEA kept a sharp eye on us. One internal memo warned that we were "familiar" with "the Promuto matter." Later, Bartels drafted a four-page , single-spaced response to one of our columns and ordered every DEA employe to read it.

From Thailand to Turkey, DEA agents were also instructed to make sure Bartels' opus was published in the local newspapers. The DEA office in Thailand gave up, explaining in a memo that "none of the Bangkok newspapers subscribe to Jack Anderson's columns." But in most places, Bartels, orders were meticulously obeyed. Responding to our charges, it seemed, had priority overfighting the drug smugglers.

The Seattle regional director assured Bartels that "all supervisors were held responsible to insure that each employe read and initialed" the four-page opus. In Boston, the regional director "personally read Mr. Bartels' letterto all Boston regional office agents." In Detroit, the regional director boasted that he had submitted the letter to the Detroit Free Press under his own signature.

And the chief of the NewYork drug task force wrote to Bartels: "We have read several artricles by columnist JackAnderson which have been less than complimentary to the Drug Enforcemnt Administration ... Your accomplishments and professionalism are deserving of accolades not criticism."

The American people will be able to judge the DEA for themselves, however, after Sen. Jackson has concluded his hearings.

BARRED BAR: Sen. John Sparkman, D.-Ala., and Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho, happen to have adjoining hideaways in the Capitol Building, linked by a bathroom-bar which could be entered from either side.

But the 75-year-old Sparkman, by right of seniority, outranks the 50-year-old Church. As the Senate Foreign Relations chairman, sparkman pleaded that he needed a private bar to entertain visiting potentates.

So orders went out to board up Church's entrance and leave Sparkman with his own private toilet an boozing facilities. The carpenters, however, got their directions mixed up and boarded Sparkman's side of the fancy bathroom.

But Church didn't enjoy the unexpected luxury for long. One day, he found his new bathroom-bar sealed off. Sparkman belatedly had expropriated the facilities, as evidence that the seniority system is still intact in the Senate.

Will Makes Waves: Strong New Breed Labor Chief Takes Over Politically Sharp Garment Union

NEW YORK — There was an ancient time in this town when David Dubinsky's pins and needles union couldn't fix a traffic ticket or prevent its business agents from getting their heads smashed. Then this International Ladies Garment Workers Union, center of the $30 billion cloak, suit, dress, brassiere and corset, underwear and children's garments and a thousand accessories industry, invented modern labor political action.

Then it became the mother of American Presidents -- all the way from Franklin Roosevelt to Lyndon Johnson and the almost President Hubert Humphrey. It helped swing states to FDR. It introduced a new boy in town -- Jack Kennedy. And it permitted Lyndon Johnson's vice presidential nomination. Or he wouldn't have gotten it.

And after 34 years president Dave Dubinsky retired -- but not until the "ILG," which once couldn't pay its electric bills, amassed over a billion dollars in David Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan bank. And Dubinsky's successor, former semi-pro baseball player Lou Stulberg, now 75 and ill, succeeded him and retired last month thus ending generations of leadership born abroad in the last century.

And the other night the new breed labor man, ILG president-elect Chick Chaikin took over. In a youth-conscious nation he's upper middle age. But at 57, this U.S Air Force veteran, American-born and oriented, a lawyer by education, a daring and imaginative organizer, is not only of the "new" but of the younger breed.

On the night of June 3, when the ILG celebrated its 75th anniversary, there was a telegram of congratulations from President Ford and many a Senator, governor and mayor. and New York's De Democratic Gov. Carey and the city's Mayor Beame and presidental hopeful Scoop Jackson (who tore a hole in his own tight schedule) came to mix and pay political respect.

Among national leaders and the national media, stocky, blackhaired Chick Chaikin is still obscure. But not for long. He's an activist. He's a Rooseveltian. He's a working-class type orator, contemptuous of his political opponents,mostof whom are Republicans. He and JFK's Larry O'Brien together teethed politically in Massachusetts, operating out of Boston – Chaikin's first real labor power base.

Chick Chaikin is no provincial. He knows the "lower Southwest" meaning Dallas, and Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, as he knows his own front door. He will wait out of respect for the union's legends and legendry, living and dead, to settle a bit before he kicks up dust.

He knows the ILG was the first to use big political money and organization where it counts. He knows what it means to have "third lines" on the ballot such as the Fusion Party and the Liberal Party. Into which the ILG poured political pins, needles and big money during scores of campaigns.

Chick Chaikin knows that the ILG, during this century's first two decades was responsible for creating the cadres, friends, philosophy and atmosphere which later became the New Deal. He knows how this paid off in the White House and how the entrance to the Oval Office was a revolving door for the garment workers' leaders.

And he knows that what Dubinsky accomplished and the ILG won was achieved on the legislative front. That will be his front -- locally, regionally and statewide as well as national. He will put the old New Deal machinery in new high fashion gear. He's a mover. And he will roll up his own "firsts."

Lest it be forgotten, the ladies' garment workers union was the first to setup departments for education, health, politics, industrial engineering and intercontinental action.

It was the first to buy a Pennsylvania mountain top as a union summer resort--and the first to win a 35-hour, five-day work week.

And it was the first to be invaded by Josef Stalin's global Communist network. That was exactly 50 years ago. The American Communist Party in June 1925 set up the "Joint Action Committee" and attempted to take over the ILG. Moscow saw its potential. The fight was bloody. This was Stalin's first invasion of labor abroad -- and his American politburo threw in everything including the forerunners of Murder Inc. and the Mafia.

The union survived, even in hard times. Today, despite the recession, it is politically poised, financially stable, strong in membership (over 400,000) and its elders are on the sidelines.

To the nation, though there are garment factories and stores in a thousand communities, last Tuesday night's 75th anniversary banquet celebration here was just another hotel grand ballroom dinner. But this Chick Chaikin is a "do-er." He wants to rack up some firsts of his own. Watch this new boy in town. He has a power base now. He's an aggressive liberal. In a while he'll shake up national politics.

Counties eligible for road funds

JEFFERSON CITY — State Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid thas announced that the counties of New Madrid, Dunklin and Mississippi will be eligible for additional monies to be spent on rural public roads not located on the federal-aid highway system under a program to be administered by the Missouri State Highway Commission.

A formula was devised to distribute the money to all counties equitably. The formula makes $56,071 available to New Madrid County, $51,652 to Dunklin County and $31,145 to Mississippi County.

The funds are to be used to finance up to 70 per cent of project costs, including preliminary engineering, right-of-way acquisition, utility relocations, construction costs and engineering. Highway funds have traditionally been spent on state and federal highways; therefore, Copeland said the program will be significant aid to the counties to upgrade county roads and bridges and to improve roadbeds and replace culverts.

He said county officials should act immediately making their fund requests, as the money is available n ow and must be under contract prior to July 1978.

Copeland stated he is pleased by the fact some monies used for years only for state and federal roads will be returned to the local level.

Economic aid bills before legislature

JEFFERSON CITY — Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, focused attention today on three of his bills, which he said could be of immense help to the economy of Southeast Missouri.

One already has passed the House of Representatives and the othr two are in position for passage. They were approved promptly by the banks committee, headed by Rep. Fred E "Gene" Copleland, D-New Madrid, who is an enthusiastic supporter of all three bills.

The bill passed (SB 605), would allow state banks to invest in the securities of the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the Bank for Cooperatives. That would put more money into these federal agencies, Spradling and Copeland said, "which in turn could loan the money to our farmers."

The other two bills, already passed by the Senate and awaiting House action, are, in favorable position on the House calendar.

One, SB 402, would let the state Environmental Improvement Authority issue and sell bonds at private sale to help finance industrial air and water pollution projects at places like the Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant at New Madrid.

Spradling and Copeland said private sale of the bonds would save considerable money for industry and at the same time help clean up air and water pollution.

The other bill awaiting House action is SB 379. It would let savings and loan companies and other financial institutions join the Missouri Development Finance Corp., a volunteer group which sells stocks and uses the money to help small industries.

Copeland said 18 small industries in Southeast Missouri hve been helped so far and the bill should help others expand or develop new industry.

Program for skills

Far too many people in and out of the military service think of the service as a delay—a few years out of "real life." Only upon return to civilian life, many believe, do servicemembers learn a skill or profession or begin a career.

There is no need for this view to be held by anyone in or out of the Air Force. Brig. Gen. Conrad S. Allman, Air Force Recruiting Servics commander, recently said that the Air Force is returning 95 per cent of its men back to civilian life with a saleable skill. In addition, Air Force has a program, Transition, to allow members separating or retiring without a marketable skill to be trained prior to departure.

Members entering the Air Force without a high school education may receive a diploma or equivalent certificate through on-duty or off-duty education training. Most installations offer undergraduate, off-duty college courses, and some offer graduate courses. Additionally, most bases offer vocational training.

An Air Force Community College has been established to enable members to transfer Air Force training credits to regular colleges, universities and vocational institutions.

What's the law?

The case of the invading godly tree

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Mr. Webb planted a tree 15 inches within the boundary line of his property. And according to Mr. Webb, it took only five years for the tree to produce nuts, namely the Browns who lived next door. They went completely berserk when the tree grew across their property line and knocked over their fence.

Confronting the Webbs with fire in their eyes, the Browns demanded that the Webbs cut down the invading tree and replace their demolished fence. Their demands, however, landed on deaf ears and the matter ended in court.

"It's an outrage," protested Mr. Brown in court. "We're under siege by Webb's aggressor tree and he refuses to do anything about it."

"It isn't my tree," responded Mr. Webb, "it's our tree. It's growing on the borderline of both our properties and a borderline tree belongs to the property owners on both sides of it. What's more," he added, "it can't be destroyed without the consent of both owners and I refuse to consent. Only God can make a tree and I'll be darned if I'm going to destroy what he has created."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order Mr. Webb to cut down his Godly tree?

This is how the judge ruled! YES! The judge held that a borderline tree, as a general rule, must be intended to be a borderline tree at the time it is planted. And, in this case, it was not. What's more, concluded the judge, Mr. Webb should not have situated his tree where he situated it in the first place, since a person may not plant a tree in such a manner as to invade the property rights of an adjoining property owner.

Welfare fraud law to Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A modified revision of the state's welfare fraud law has been approved by the Missouri House and returnd to the Senate.

The bill, overwhelmingly accepted by the House in a rare Sunday session, would make any welfare fraud totaling more than $150 a felony, punishable by a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. The current penalty is one year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine.

"It's getting at that person who is trying to abuse or defraud the welfare system for personal gain," said Noel Republican Dan Harmon, who handled the Senate-passed bill during House debate.

The measure had originally called for all convictions of welfare fraud to carry a felony penalty, but that procedure was met with some resistance by a number of house members, who contended persons involved in frauds of only $10 or $20 should be treated differently than those involved in frauds that cost the state more.

"We probably need some correction in this statute, and if we have a line for felonies and misdemeanors, I think it would be better than making it all either misdemeanors or felonies," argued Creve Coeur's Murray Stone, who sponsored the amendment that would make only frauds of more than $150 a felony.

During earlier debate, the House approved a resolution authorizing employment of its staff during the summer months, rejecting an attempt to end the operations of its print shop.

Republican members supported an end to the print shop activity on the grounds that allowing a professional printer to handle the work generated by the House would be technically more professional. The House printing operation has caused some delay in processing bills and the daily log of chamber action.

But supporters of continuing the printing shop claimed the operation should be given a full chance to show its money-saving aspects. It began operation only this session.

The House also passed and sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond a bill that would require all municipalities constructing sidwalks after Sept. 28 to provide for wheelchair ramps at every crosswalk.

Challenger is upheld

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond does not have the right to oust the chairman of a state commission before his term expires, the Missouri Supreme Court said today.

In the 5-2 decision, the high court upheld the challenge of Labor and Industrial Relations Commission Chairman James Butler that his office was not "abolished" by the reorganization constiutional amendment of 1972 or the implementing legislation approved last year.

Executive branch officials have expressed hope that the decision would also answer other challenges to Bond's appointment powers as a result of reorganization. But gubernatorial aide Ralph Smith said the decision would have to be reviewed by the governor's office before there would be any comment.

New call signs to highway patrol

JEFFERSON CITY—The Missouri State Highway Patrol was recently issued a new citizens band radio license by the Federal Communications Commission with the call sign KMO 0911. Troopers with CB transceivers will answer callers who use the previous call sign (KGY 5621) and then will advise such persons of the change in call signs.

Col Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the highway patrol, noted that the new CB call sign is distinctive in that the MO in the alpha characters represent the two-letter postal state identifier for Missouri and the numeric characters 911 is the national emergency telephone number being adopted by many law enforcement agencies in the country.

4 fire calls answered

Fire gutted the interior of an automobile east of Sikeston in one of four calls Saturday by the Sikeston Fire Department.

The car, owned by Jasper Lynn Ray, Route Two, caught fire about 5:30 p.m. while Ray was driving along Highway 62 about two miles east of Miner.

Ray told firemen that smoke started pouring from under the dash and he pulled the car over to the side of the road just before it burst into flames. The cause of the fire was not determined.

A Frisco train with a hot wheel box went through Sikeston about 2:40 p.m. Saturday spreading a grass and weed fire that stretched from the 600 block of Davis Boulevard to Salcedo Road.

Firemen said another fire was reported along the tracks near McMullin, but the Sikeston Fire Department did not respond to it.

At 1:45 a.m. Saturday, firemen were called to 901 Stanford Drive when a car owned by Naoma L. Reeves caught fire. The fire report did not list the cause or damage.

At 7:36 p.m. Saturday, firemen were called to the Robert Shannon home, 105 Alabama St., when a car hit a natural gas meter and broke the line. Firemen were called to stand by. There was no fire.

Program for skills

Far too many people in and out of the military service think of the service as a delay—a few years out of "real life." Only upon return to civilian life, many believe, do servicemembers learn a skill or profession or begin a career.

There is no need for this view to be held by anyone in or out of the Air Force. Brig. Gen. Conrad S. Allman, Air Force Recruiting Servics commander, recently said that the Air Force is returning 95 per cent of its men back to civilian life with a saleable skill. In addition, Air Force has a program, Transition, to allow members separating or retiring without a marketable skill to be trained prior to departure.

"more spice than everything nice"

It's a winner

A twist on flavor

Mrs. Kathleen Dean of Fredericktown, Ohio says the supreme test of any cook are people's reactions to a dish after sampling. Evidently, Cinnamon Swirl Apple Bread passed the test of her three children. She has won several poetry contests and enjoys drawing, writing and hiking.

1 package hot roll mix
¾ cup very warm water (105 - 115 degrees F.)
1 tsp. orange- flavored instant breakfast drink.
½ cup (1 small) peeled, finely chopped apple
1 egg
¼ cup sugar
1 ½ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. orange- flavored instant breadfast drink
1 tbsp. butter or margarie, melted

In large bowl, dissolve yeast from hot roll mix in water. Stir in one teaspoon instant orange drink, apple and egg. Add flour mixture; blend well. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in sixe, 45 to 60 minutes. Grease (not oil) 9 - 5 or 8 - 4- inch loaf pan. On well-floured surface, toss dough until no longer sticky. Press or roll out dough to 12 - 7- inch rectangle. Combine sugar, cinnamon and one teaspoon instant orange drink; reserve 1 ½ teaspoons and sprinkle rest over dough.

Starting with shorter side, roll up tightly; seal edges. Place sealed- side- down in greased pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Bombeck chatters on ruining husband's game

Somehow, in this lumpy little body that trips over lint in the carpet is a Chrissie Evert just fighting to get out. I know that.

It's just a matter of time before I develop form, learn how to get my tennis racket out of the press, and don't require oxygen after each serve.

"The trouble with your tennis," my husband said sliding on his sweatband, "is that you talk too much. The name of the game is concentration."

"You know, I think you're right," I said revving up for a serve. "Incidentally, the garage called and your transmission is gone."

He stood there numb as the ball bounced off his foot.

"THE TRANSMISSION!"

"That's 15 love. Yep, it couldn't come at a worse time. We got an estimate on Brucie's mouth today and the tab comes to $1500. In two years I figure our orthodontist will buy Iran. Ready?"

He swiped pathetically at the next serve and missed it.

"That's 30 love. Let's not talk about depressing things. Let's just play tennis. By the way, what does the IRS want with you?"

He dropped the racket as I served the next ball.

"I have no idea. Did they call?"

"40-love. I put the message on the refrigerator."

"Hold it!" he said coming to the net. "Do you mean to tell me the IRS called and you didn't tell me the moment I walked in the door?"

"I didn't want to upset you during dinner. If I did I would have told you my mother is coming for a visit, we are overdrawn at the bank, your watch fell in the disposal, there's a story in tonight's paper about the cutback at your firm, and your son ran away from home. But enough small talk."

He massaged his head with his hand as he dragged into position for my next serve.

"Dear, " I smiled, "you are in the wrong court. Do you mind moving over to where I expect to serve?"

"What?" he asked , his eyes staring vacantly.

"Move over. There. If I make this point I want to talk with you about the divorce."

"Divorce?" he winced stumbling over his shoelace.

"My game!" I said. "Yes, Bernice and Brute, the couple we met in Canada about six years ago? Remember them?"

"You know what you are?" he stormed, "you are unreal. I have never seen a women so intent on destroying a man's game. Is there anything else before I..."

"Look," I interrupted. "Are we going to stand here and talk all day or are we going to play some serious tennis?"

Home is built on creativity

By ELSA WILLIAMS

Teaching is a great educational experience. In the more than 20 years I criss-crossed the country giving needlework seminars and courses I think I learned as much from my students as they did from me.

And each time I came back home I'd say to myself, "Wouldn't it be wonderful if I could establish a permanent school devoted to the needle arts where beginners would be started out with the correct techniques, where experts could refine and extend their skills and where creativity would be sparked in a responsive environment?"

Then one day, a beautiful Georgian house next door to me in West Townsend, Mass., became vacant. It once had belonged to the family of famed American artist, Winslow Homer. I decided this was a nudge from fate and bought it.

What a happy, busy time I had remodeling it into the school of my dreams! Superb examples of the embroiderer's art adorn thewalls of the formal drawing room where students gather before and after dinner with their needlework.

In the dining room, needlepoint upholstery on the white chairs echoes the design on the dinner plates. Upstairs, each of the bedrooms is different. The Marie Antoinette room has a bedspread and valances with a lovely embroidered design adapted from one worked long ago by Marie Antoinette. The armoire with the embroidered panels sketched here is in another bedroom.

Fifty chairs, each with a different Bargello pattern worked by a friend or student, are the "seats of learning" in our downstairs classroom. Outside, there's a swimming pool and beyond, the rolling New England hills.

Classes run from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Actually, they last all day and into the night as students steal time form lunch for afew extra stitches or work into the wee hours, encouraged by a teacher who's on hand to answer questions or demonstrate a difficult stitch.

Because classes are small, instruction is virtually on a one-to-one basis, accounting for the rapid strides students make in a single week. The courses change weekly and may vary from a beginners' class or a seminar for shop owners to a class in stump work, black work and design interpretation for advanced students. I often bring in guest instructors who are expert in specialized needlework such as ecclesiastical design or applique.

Homer House is my pride and joy. I like to feel that here, in what I'm told is the only live-in school of its kind in the world, we are helping to restore needlework to its proper place as an art form.

Dear Elsa,
What is the point of using duo canvas?
E.J.

Dear E.J.,
Mono or single-thread is more commonly used today but duo canvas does have one advantage. You can split the double threads to do fine details on faces and hands in petit point on a gros point canvas embroidery.

For a free folder about the Elsa Williams School of Needle Art write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Sta., N.Y. 10017.

Ann Landers

Funeral arrangements made befor man is dead

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so rattled I can hardly write but I need advice, and fast. A friend whom I haven't seen in a month phoned to say her husband had surgery a few days ago and in her words, "It doesn't look as if Bernie will make it."

I started to express my sympathy and she interrupted with, "Please ask Jim if he will serve as a pallbearer. The casket I'm considering is heavy and I'll need some strong men."

I asked in as tactful a way as I could if her husband was still "with us." She repleid, "Yes, Bernie is still alive, but as I told you, the doctor says it doesn't look good. I want to get as many things as possible done ahead of time." I agreed to ask Jim if he would be a pallbearer and requested that she let us know "if and when the time comes."

Just as I was about to ring off she wondered if I thought it would be all right if she wore a light-green, knit suit. She said, "I hate black and I look terrible in it." Then she added, "My green hat is brand new and I haven't had a chance to wear it yet." I told her the decision should be hers.

I just got off the phone and don't know what to make of it. How can I ask my husband if he will be a pallbearer for a man who is still living? Is the woman batty? I need some advice. -- Stunned In Seubenville

Dear S.: It sounds as if the poor thing has had more than her share of anxiety. Tell your husband about the call, inform your friend of his decision, and request that she keep you posted.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell "Mind Of My Own" that she is lucky to have a Mom and Dad who WANT to run her life. We gave in and allowed our beautiful 16-year-old daughter to go with a crazy, mixed-up, hippie freak. Now she is eight months prgnant and has dropped out of high school.

I guess you might say our daughter proved she had a "mind of her own," but until she was 18 we should have insisted that she toe the line and do exactly as we said.

Now, because we let her "run her own life" (as she insisted) we are suffering for her foolish mistakes. Just sign us -- Lost In Logic

Dear Lost: There is no way you could have insisted that your daughter "toe the line" if she was determined to defy you and continue to see that boy.

Defiant and rebellious children will do as they please. You could have stood on your head and spit firecrackers and the results would have been the same. So stop beating yourselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Saturday is the day my husband is supposed to spend with his five-year-old son by a former wife.

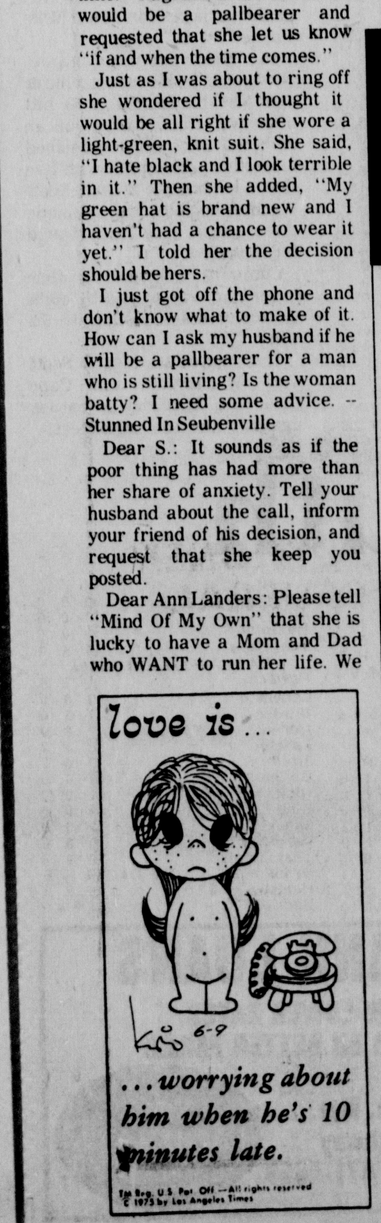

Every Saturday he has a golf game, plays cards, or goes fishing. I am the unpaid babysitter and I resent it. The youngster is undisciplined and I am exhausted after chasing him for seven hours. Any suggestions?-- Beat

Dear Beat: Hire a sitter and get out of the house. Also tell your husband if he doesn't start spending some time with that boy soon they will have no relationship later. In fact, it may be too late now.

Bombeck chatters on ruining husband's game

Somehow, in this lumpy little body that trips over lint in the carpet is a Chrissie Evert just fighting to get out. I know that.

It's just a matter of time before I develop form, learn how to get my tennis racket out of the press, and don't require oxygen after each serve.

"The trouble with your tennis," my husband said sliding on his sweatband, "is that you talk too much. The name of the game is concentration."

"You know, I think you're right," I said revving up for a serve. "Incidentally, the garage called and your transmission is gone."

He stood there numb as the ball bounced off his foot.

"THE TRANSMISSION!"

"That's 15 love. Yep, it couldn't come at a worse time. We got an estimate on Brucie's mouth today and the tab comes to $1500. In two years I figure our orthodontist will buy Iran. Ready?"

He swiped pathetically at the next serve and missed it.

"That's 30 love. Let's not talk about depressing things. Let's just play tennis. By the way, what does the IRS want with you?"

He dropped the racket as I served the next ball.

"I have no idea. Did they call?"

"40-love. I put the message on the refrigerator."

"Hold it!" he said coming to the net. "Do you mean to tell me the IRS called and you didn't tell me the moment I walked in the door?"

"I didn't want to upset you during dinner. If I did I would have told you my mother is coming for a visit, we are overdrawn at the bank, your watch fell in the disposal, there's a story in tonight's paper about the cutback at your firm, and your son ran away from home. But enough small talk."

He massaged his head with his hand as he dragged into position for my next serve.

"Dear," I smiled, "you are in the wrong court. Do you mind moving over to where I expect to serve?"

"What?" he asked , his eyes staring vacantly.

"Move over. There. If I make this point I want to talk with you about the divorce."

"Divorce?" he winced stumbling over his shoelace.

"My game!" I said. "Yes, Bernice and Brute, the couple we met in Canada about six years ago? Remember them?"

"You know what you are?" he stormed, "you are unreal. I have never seen a women so intent on destroying a man's game. Is there anything else before I..."

"Look," I interrupted. "Are we going to stand here and talk all day or are we going to play some serious tennis?"

Home is built on creativity

By ELSA WILLIAMS

Teaching is a great educational experience. In the more than 20 years I criss-crossed the country giving needlework seminars and courses I think I learned as much from my students as they did from me.

And each time I came back home I'd say to myself, "Wouldn't it be wonderful if I could establish a permanent school devoted to the needle arts where beginners would be started out with the correct techniques, where experts could refine and extend their skills and where creativity would be sparked in a responsive environment?"

Then one day, a beautiful Georgian house next door to me in West Townsend, Mass., became vacant. It once had belonged to the family of famed American artist, Winslow Homer. I decided this was a nudge from fate and bought it.

What a happy, busy time I had remodeling it into the school of my dreams! Superb examples of the embroiderer's art adorn thewalls of the formal drawing room where students gather before and after dinner with their needlework.

In the dining room, needlepoint upholstery on the white chairs echoes the design on the dinner plates. Upstairs, each of the bedrooms is different. The Marie Antoinette room has a bedspread and valances with a lovely embroidered design adapted from one worked long ago by Marie Antoinette. The armoire with the embroidered panels sketched here is in another bedroom.

Fifty chairs, each with a different Bargello pattern worked by a friend or student, are the "seats of learning" in our downstairs classroom. Outside, there's a swimming pool and beyond, the rolling New England hills.

Classes run from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Actually, they last all day and into the night as students steal time form lunch for afew extra stitches or work into the wee hours, encouraged by a teacher who's on hand to answer questions or demonstrate a difficult stitch.

Because classes are small, instruction is virtually on a one-to-one basis, accounting for the rapid strides students make in a single week. The courses change weekly and may vary from a beginners' class or a seminar for shop owners to a class in stump work, black work and design interpretation for advanced students. I often bring in guest instructors who are expert in specialized needlework such as ecclesiastical design or applique.

Homer House is my pride and joy. I like to feel that here, in what I'm told is the only live-in school of its kind in the world, we are helping to restore needlework to its proper place as an art form.

Dear Elsa,
What is the point of using duo canvas?
E.J.

Dear E.J.,
Mono or single-thread is more commonly used today but duo canvas does have one advantage. You can split the double threads to do fine details on faces and hands in petit point on a gros point canvas embroidery.

Ann Landers

Funeral arrangements made befor man is dead

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so rattled I can hardly write but I need advice, and fast. A friend whom I haven't seen in a month phoned to say her husband had surgery a few days ago and in her words, "It doesn't look as if Bernie will make it."

I started to express my sympathy and she interrupted with, "Please ask Jim if he will serve as a pallbearer. The casket I'm considering is heavy and I'll need some strong men."

I asked in as tactful a way as I could if her husband was still "with us." She repleid, "Yes, Bernie is still alive, but as I told you, the doctor says it doesn't look good. I want to get as many things as possible done ahead of time." I agreed to ask Jim if he would be a pallbearer and requested that she let us know "if and when the time comes."

Just as I was about to ring off she wondered if I thought it would be all right if she wore a light-green, knit suit. She said, "I hate black and I look terrible in it." Then she added, "My green hat is brand new and I haven't had a chance to wear it yet." I told her the decision should be hers.

I just got off the phone and don't know what to make of it. How can I ask my husband if he will be a pallbearer for a man who is still living? Is the woman batty? I need some advice. -- Stunned In Seubenville

Dear S.: It sounds as if the poor thing has had more than her share of anxiety. Tell your husband about the call, inform your friend of his decision, and request that she keep you posted.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell "Mind Of My Own" that she is lucky to have a Mom and Dad who WANT to run her life. We gave in and allowed our beautiful 16-year-old daughter to go with a crazy, mixed-up, hippie freak. Now she is eight months prgnant and has dropped out of high school.

I guess you might say our daughter proved she had a "mind of her own," but until she was 18 we should have insisted that she toe the line and do exactly as we said.

Now, because we let her "run her own life" (as she insisted) we are suffering for her foolish mistakes. Just sign us -- Lost In Logic

Dear Lost: There is no way you could have insisted that your daughter "toe the line" if she was determined to defy you and continue to see that boy.

Defiant and rebellious children will do as they please. You could have stood on your head and spit firecrackers and the results would have been the same. So stop beating yourselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Saturday is the day my husband is supposed to spend with his five-year-old son by a former wife.

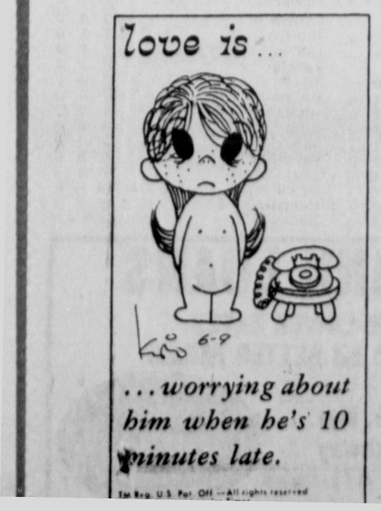

Every Saturday he has a golf game, plays cards, or goes fishing. I am the unpaid babysitter and I resent it. The youngster is undisciplined and I am exhausted after chasing him for seven hours. Any suggestions?-- Beat

Dear Beat: Hire a sitter and get out of the house. Also tell your husband if he doesn't start spending some time with that boy soon they will have no relationship later. In fact, it may be too late now.

Cardinals win 6th straight

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros may be getting the idea it's not their season when every pitcher they face looks like Walter Johnson and fans start coming out of the stands to help them field.

St. Louis took advantage of Houston's misfortunes for the third straight day Sunday when they rode Ted Simmons' two-run double and Reggie Smith's two-run homer to a 5-1 victory and a sweep of the three game series.

While the rejuvenated Cardinals were winning their sixth straight game and projecting themselves into the National League East race, Houston, the losingest team in the majors, was taking its eighth straight defeat.

"Since we left Philadelphia (on their last road trip) we haven't been hitting," Astros Manager Preston Gomez said. "And it seems every pitcher we face comes on like Walter Johnson.

Gomez could speak in much more glowing terms of the Cardinals, who last week acquired outfielder Willie Davis from the Texas Rangers and have inserted Mario Guerrero at shortstop.

"They are a different team with Guerrero at shortstop," Gomez said. "And Davis will help them. I had him when I was with the Dodgers. All he needs to do is get this (Gomez pointing to his head) straightened out. I think he can play five or six more years."

Briefly in the first inning, it appeared the Astros might be breaking out of their slump that includes a team batting average of .175 during the past eight games.

Greg Gross led off with a triple and scored on Cesar Cedeno's grounder. Bob Watson singled and Milt May doubled in the inning too but that was all the runs. The Astros have scored three runs in the last 48 innings.

Simmons clubbed his double in the fourth, scoring Ted Sizemore and Davis and Smith hit his two-run homer in the sixth. Bake McBride scored the final run in the ninth inning when Astros second baseman Tommy Helms and outfielder Jose Cruz collided going for a shallow fly ball to rightfield.

Astros' left fielder Gross got some fielding help in the third inning when Cards Ken Reitz hit a double down the third base line. A youngster jumped out of the stands and tried to field the ball for Gross.

An Astrodome security officer spoke to the lad but didn't eject him. Who knows? If the kid can hit, the Astros may sign him up.

Pitching rules American league

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Oakland's Ken Holtzman was thinking about a no-hitter. He almost got one.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer wasn't thinking about a no-hitter ... and he almost got one, too.

For Palmer, the thought of what might have been didn't really enter his mind until it was too late, well after Hal McRae's fourth-inning single, Kansas City's lone hit in Sunday's 1-0 loss to the Orioles.

But for Holtzman, the thought lingered on, as long as the dream of a no-hitter can go before it becomes a reality.

It lasted 8 2-3 innings. Actually it lasted more than that, until Detroit's Tom Veryzer was down to his last strike. Then, bang, it was all over with a booming double to center field that caught the wind and sailed about a foot beyond the glove of lunging Billy North.

So, with the dream of a third career no-hitter gone, Holtzman did what any good pitcher would do. He returned to the busines of trying to win. And he did, striking out Ron LeFlore to end the game, and the A's trudged off the field with a 4-0 victory over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland defeated Texas 3-2 before the Rangers won the 17-inning second game 7-6, Minnesota beat Boston 7-5, New York downed Chicago 5-1 and Milwaukee edged California 4-3.

Claudell Washington gave Holtzman all the hits he needed with his fifth and sixth homers of the season, a solo shot in the fifth inning and a three-run clout in the seventh.

Orioles 1, Royals 0

"If I had gone late into the game with a no-hitter going, I might have thought about it," Palmer said. "But even then, I think everything you do has to be dictated in the way you want to try and win the game."

So Palmer simply outdueled the Royals' Steve Busby, who allowed just four hits. Baltimore's Brooks Robinson followed Lee May's seventh-inning double with a single down the right field line.

Indians 3-6, Rangers 2-7

"If I say I'm not tired I'm a liar ... I don't think I'd feel this tired if I played," quipped Texas Manager Billy Martin after singles by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Hargrove and Len Randle gave the Rangers their 4¾-hour, 17-inning nightcap victory over Cleveland in the longest game in the majors this season.

In the first game, the Indians bunched all their runs in the fourth inning, two coming on John Ellis' two-run double.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

Larry Hisle doubled to start Minnesota's six-run ninth inning that beat Boston and capped it with an RBI-single.

Hisle's double was protested by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who was ejected after heatedly contending that the high drive to left field had been caught at the wall by Bernie Carbo. Umpire Jerry Neudecker disagreed, insisting it bounced off Carbo's glove and hit the wall before he grabbed it again.

Yanks 4, White Sox 1

The Yanks, notching their eighth straight victory, also got the benefit of a disputed drive to left. Elliott Maddox hit the ball in the third inning. A fan reached down and touched the ball. But although it was a ground-rule double, Walt Williams was allowed to score from first. The umps ruled that since he'd been running on the play, he would have made it home in any case.

Chris Chambliss then made the matter academic by driving in two runs with a ninth-inning single to cap the triumph over the White Sox.

Brewers 4, Angels 3

Darrell Porter drilled a two-run single to snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning, then pounded a two-run homer that gave the Brewers their winning edge over California.

Metz homers

Sikeston lost its opening round game in the double elimination fast pitch softball tournament Saturday night when Oran posted a 2-0 victory in a battle between the pre-tournament favorites.

In other tournament action, Poplar Bluff blanked New Hamburg Blues 4-0 and Scott City dumped Kelso 10-5 in Friday night play. Vanduser took the Cape A's 5-2 in 12 innings in the second game Saturday night. In Sunday's action, Benton posted a 8-1 win over the Cape Mets in eight innings and Poplar Bluff rilled over Scott City 4-2.

Poplar Bluff relied on its pitching in defeating the Blues Friday, limiting them to two hits. Eudaley claimed the victory and was backed by a seven hit attack. Sunday afternoon the Bluff team again relied on its star pitcher for a six hitter and 4-2 verdict.

Scott City used a big five run sixth inning to put away Kelso, who had jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

Gary Owens went the 12 inning distance for Vanduser and limited the Cape A's to five hits during Saturday's action.

Vanduser relied on a four run 12th inning to claim the victory. The A's scored one run the last of the 12th.

Don Metz homered, driving in Richard Blastetter, who had went three for three for Oran, in their 2-0 victory over Sikeston. Robert claimed the four hit victory while Blair was dealt the loss.

Benton relied on the three hit pitching of Bill Gilliland for their 4-1 eight inning triumph. Benton scored three runs in the eighth after tying the score with a fifth inning tally. Cape jumped out to a 1-0 leading the first on Jim Glastetter's home run run.

Bluff rallied from a 2-0 deficit with three runs in the fifth inning and added an insurance tally in the seventh to defeat Scott City, who had taken a 2-0 lead in the first.

Favorite eliminated

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — So much for college baseball polls.

Seton Hall and Arizona State proved that rankings don't mean much when it comes to the College World Series.

"This is really a great ballclub, I am just sorry we did not show it to the people here," summed up Florida State Coach Woody Woodward after his top-rated team was eliminated Sunday 11-0 by Seton Hall.

Well, what about No. 2?

That would be Texas, and the Longhorns also were on the wrong end, losing 5-2 to Arizona State but remaining alive in the double-elimination tournament that is down to six teams.

Fourth-ranked South Carolina recouped a little prestige for the ratings compiled by the newspaper "Collegiate Baseball," by toppling upstart Eastern Michigan 5-1 in a game called in the sixth inning because of rain.

The only unbeatens — Arizona State, 60-11, and South Carolina, 49-4 — battle Tuesday night, Texas, 53-6, tests Seton Hall, 32-9, and Oklahoma, 51-9, plays Eastern Michigan, 37-19, in elimination games Monday night.

Florida State was surprised 2-1 in 10 innings Saturday night by Eastern Michigan and finished 49-10.

Chaffee wins pair

Chaffee swept a twin ball away from the Dexter Sr. Babe Ruth all-stars over the weekend, posting 9-2 and 5-2 victories.

Randy Newcomer and Joe David Cummins handled the pitching chores for coach Mike Payne's stars.

In the opening game, Newcomer fashioned a six hitter and was backed by a 13 hitt offensive attack. Lindy Duncan homered and singled and joined four other teammates with five hits in leading the assault. Scott Wachter tripled and drove home three runsa long with David McConnell.

Cummins mastered a four hitter and was adided by eight Dexter errors in posting the 5-2 win.

The Chaffee stars go to Scott City Wednesday and Cape Girardeau Thursday in battles against American Legion foes.

Jr. Babe Ruth

The Bank of Sikeston and Davis & Bird posted Jr. Babe Ruth league wins Friday night D&B out-battled Elliott Newton 8-5 and the Bank charged past Harts Bread 9-5.

Pitching dominated the Bank victory as Hurley mastered a three hitter, fanning 11 while McDowell and McAfee teamed for a four hitter in a losing cause.

A fifth inning rally by Harts as the time limit was running out in the game proved futile after tying the score at 5-5. The Bank charged back in the last half of the frame for four runs and the victory.

Laseter clubbed two doubles and teamed with Smith to lead the teams offense with two hits each. DeWitt paced Harts offense with a double.

Davie & Bird stormed out to a 5-0 lead in the opening inning and rode the eight hit hurling of Doyle to the victory. Deal, McGee and Burgess had two hits each to lead D&B's nine hit attack. Greer doubled for D&B and Lambert slammed a two bagger for E&N, while leading the teams offense with a four for four showing at the plate.

Cardinals win 6th straight

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros may be getting the idea it's not their season when every pitcher they face looks like Walter Johnson and fans start coming out of the stands to help them field.

St. Louis took advantage of Houston's misfortunes for the third straight day Sunday when they rode Ted Simmons' two-run double and Reggie Smith's two-run homer to a 5-1 victory and a sweep of the three game series.

While the rejuvenated Cardinals were winning their sixth straight game and projecting themselves into the National League East race, Houston, the losingest team in the majors, was taking its eighth straight defeat.

"Since we left Philadelphia (on their last road trip) we haven't been hitting," Astros Manager Preston Gomez said. "And it seems every pitcher we face comes on like Walter Johnson.

Gomez could speak in much more glowing terms of the Cardinals, who last week acquired outfielder Willie Davis from the Texas Rangers and have inserted Mario Guerrero at shortstop.

"They are a different team with Guerrero at shortstop," Gomez said. "And Davis will help them. I had him when I was with the Dodgers. All he needs to do is get this (Gomez pointing to his head) straightened out. I think he can play five or six more years."

Briefly in the first inning, it appeared the Astros might be breaking out of their slump that includes a team batting average of .175 during the past eight games.

Greg Gross led off with a triple and scored on Cesar Cedeno's grounder. Bob Watson singled and Milt May doubled in the inning too but that was all the runs. The Astros have scored three runs in the last 48 innings.

Simmons clubbed his double in the fourth, scoring Ted Sizemore and Davis and Smith hit his two-run homer in the sixth. Bake McBride scored the final run in the ninth inning when Astros second baseman Tommy Helms and outfielder Jose Cruz collided going for a shallow fly ball to rightfield.

Astros' left fielder Gross got some fielding help in the third inning when Cards Ken Reitz hit a double down the third base line. A youngster jumped out of the stands and tried to field the ball for Gross.

An Astrodome security officer spoke to the lad but didn't eject him. Who knows? If the kid can hit, the Astros may sign him up.

Pitching rules American league

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Oakland's Ken Holtzman was thinking about a no-hitter. He almost got one.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer wasn't thinking about a no-hitter ... and he almost got one, too.

For Palmer, the thought of what might have been didn't really enter his mind until it was too late, well after Hal McRae's fourth-inning single, Kansas City's lone hit in Sunday's 1-0 loss to the Orioles.

But for Holtzman, the thought lingered on, as long as the dream of a no-hitter can go before it becomes a reality.

It lasted 8 2-3 innings. Actually it lasted more than that, until Detroit's Tom Veryzer was down to his last strike. Then, bang, it was all over with a booming double to center field that caught the wind and sailed about a foot beyond the glove of lunging Billy North.

So, with the dream of a third career no-hitter gone, Holtzman did what any good pitcher would do. He returned to the busines of trying to win. And he did, striking out Ron LeFlore to end the game, and the A's trudged off the field with a 4-0 victory over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland defeated Texas 3-2 before the Rangers won the 17-inning second game 7-6, Minnesota beat Boston 7-5, New York downed Chicago 5-1 and Milwaukee edged California 4-3.

Claudell Washington gave Holtzman all the hits he needed with his fifth and sixth homers of the season, a solo shot in the fifth inning and a three-run clout in the seventh.

Orioles 1, Royals 0

"If I had gone late into the game with a no-hitter going, I might have thought about it," Palmer said. "But even then, I think everything you do has to be dictated in the way you want to try and win the game."

So Palmer simply outdueled the Royals' Steve Busby, who allowed just four hits. Baltimore's Brooks Robinson followed Lee May's seventh-inning double with a single down the right field line.

Indians 3-6, Rangers 2-7

"If I say I'm not tired I'm a liar ... I don't think I'd feel this tired if I played," quipped Texas Manager Billy Martin after singles by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Hargrove and Len Randle gave the Rangers their 4¾-hour, 17-inning nightcap victory over Cleveland in the longest game in the majors this season.

In the first game, the Indians bunched all their runs in the fourth inning, two coming on John Ellis' two-run double.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

Larry Hisle doubled to start Minnesota's six-run ninth inning that beat Boston and capped it with an RBI-single.

Hisle's double was protested by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who was ejected after heatedly contending that the high drive to left field had been caught at the wall by Bernie Carbo. Umpire Jerry Neudecker disagreed, insisting it bounced off Carbo's glove and hit the wall before he grabbed it again.

Yanks 4, White Sox 1

The Yanks, notching their eighth straight victory, also got the benefit of a disputed drive to left. Elliott Maddox hit the ball in the third inning. A fan reached down and touched the ball. But although it was a ground-rule double, Walt Williams was allowed to score from first. The umps ruled that since he'd been running on the play, he would have made it home in any case.

Chris Chambliss then made the matter academic by driving in two runs with a ninth-inning single to cap the triumph over the White Sox.

Brewers 4, Angels 3

Darrell Porter drilled a two-run single to snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning, then pounded a two-run homer that gave the Brewers their winning edge over California.

Metz homers

Sikeston lost its opening round game in the double elimination fast pitch softball tournament Saturday night when Oran posted a 2-0 victory in a battle between the pre-tournament favorites.

In other tournament action, Poplar Bluff blanked New Hamburg Blues 4-0 and Scott City dumped Kelso 10-5 in Friday night play. Vanduser took the Cape A's 5-2 in 12 innings in the second game Saturday night. In Sunday's action, Benton posted a 8-1 win over the Cape Mets in eight innings and Poplar Bluff rilled over Scott City 4-2.

Poplar Bluff relied on its pitching in defeating the Blues Friday, limiting them to two hits. Eudaley claimed the victory and was backed by a seven hit attack. Sunday afternoon the Bluff team again relied on its star pitcher for a six hitter and 4-2 verdict.

Scott City used a big five run sixth inning to put away Kelso, who had jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning.

Gary Owens went the 12 inning distance for Vanduser and limited the Cape A's to five hits during Saturday's action.

Vanduser relied on a four run 12th inning to claim the victory. The A's scored one run the last of the 12th.

Don Metz homered, driving in Richard Blastetter, who had went three for three for Oran, in their 2-0 victory over Sikeston. Robert claimed the four hit victory while Blair was dealt the loss.

Benton relied on the three hit pitching of Bill Gilliland for their 4-1 eight inning triumph. Benton scored three runs in the eighth after tying the score with a fifth inning tally. Cape jumped out to a 1-0 leading the first on Jim Glastetter's home run run.

Bluff rallied from a 2-0 deficit with three runs in the fifth inning and added an insurance tally in the seventh to defeat Scott City, who had taken a 2-0 lead in the first.

Favorite eliminated

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — So much for college baseball polls.

Seton Hall and Arizona State proved that rankings don't mean much when it comes to the College World Series.

"This is really a great ballclub, I am just sorry we did not show it to the people here," summed up Florida State Coach Woody Woodward after his top-rated team was eliminated Sunday 11-0 by Seton Hall.

Well, what about No. 2?

That would be Texas, and the Longhorns also were on the wrong end, losing 5-2 to Arizona State but remaining alive in the double-elimination tournament that is down to six teams.

Fourth-ranked South Carolina recouped a little prestige for the ratings compiled by the newspaper "Collegiate Baseball," by toppling upstart Eastern Michigan 5-1 in a game called in the sixth inning because of rain.

The only unbeatens — Arizona State, 60-11, and South Carolina, 49-4 — battle Tuesday night, Texas, 53-6, tests Seton Hall, 32-9, and Oklahoma, 51-9, plays Eastern Michigan, 37-19, in elimination games Monday night.

Florida State was surprised 2-1 in 10 innings Saturday night by Eastern Michigan and finished 49-10.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

In Friday night Little League action, National Leaguers saw the Lions down Security National 9-4, at the new Sikeston sports complex. The Lions scored three runs in three different innings and for Security they scored two runs in two different innings. The winning pitcher was Watkins with the fanning of six. The loser was Roberts who fanned a big eleven batters.

The double scorers for the Lions included Vaught, Grojean, and Roberts. In triples, Smith, Jackson, and Beaudean had one each. The Lions had a total of ten hits and Security close with nine. Watkins had the most with two and Brannon of Security the most with three.

MILWAUKEE — A.J. Foyt, starting from the pole position, captured the Rex Mays 150-mile race for Indianapolis-type cars, outlasting Indianapolis 500 winner Bobby Unser.

Jr. Babe Ruth

The Bank of Sikeston and Davis & Bird posted Jr. Babe Ruth league wins Friday night D&B out-battled Elliott Newton 8-5 and the Bank charged past Harts Bread 9-5.

Pitching dominated the Bank victory as Hurley mastered a three hitter, fanning 11 while McDowell and McAfee teamed for a four hitter in a losing cause.

A fifth inning rally by Harts as the time limit was running out in the game proved futile after tying the score at 5-5. The Bank charged back in the last half of the frame for four runs and the victory.

Laseter clubbed two doubles and teamed with Smith to lead the teams offense with two hits each. DeWitt paced Harts offense with a double.

Davie & Bird stormed out to a 5-0 lead in the opening inning and rode the eight hit hurling of Doyle to the victory. Deal, McGee and Burgess had two hits each to lead D&B's nine hit attack. Greer doubled for D&B and Lambert slammed a two bagger for E&N, while leading the teams offense with a four for four showing at the plate.

State record

GOLDEN CITY--Gene Moore is a fishing guide. He could land a 12-pound bass for you with no problems.

But until recently, he would have had trouble landing an 18-pound northern pike. Because he did.

Moore caught a pike that weighed 18 pounds, nine ounces on Stockton Lake April 26 to establish a new state record and the biggest problem he had landing the fish was getting its 39-½ inch length in his bass landing net.

The fish's weight erased the old mark of 18 pounds, three ounces, set April 27, 1974, by Mike Miller, Springfield. There has been a new pike record every year since 1971 and the last three all have come in April.

Moore plans to have his record catch mounted. He was using a deep running lure, fishing for bass. He did the one thing that can preserve a state record--he got the fish quickly to a scales where conservation agent Harry Tankesley verified it.

Fish lose weight rapidly after they're caught and several fish that came within ounces of state records probably would have broken the records if they'd been weighed more promptly.

Moore will get a plaque with the details of his catch from the Conservation Department.

Five left

MILLERSBURG--There still are five of them out there, fishermen.

Glenn Baumgartner, Millersburg, recently hooked and landed a 51-pound paddlefish from the Department of Conservation's Little Dixie Lake near here.

It was one of six that has been stocked in the lake over the past dozen years, says Don Norwat, manager of the area. Little Dixie research ponds have been used over the years to try to raise young paddlefish.

The spawning grounds of the paddlefish on the upper Osage River will be destroyed by Harry S. Truman Reservoir and the Conservation Department hopes to find ways to save the important paddlefishery on the Osage.

But that had nothing to do with Baumgartner who was fishing for catfish off the lake dam when the big paddlefish met his hook. Paddlefish normally don't take bait, since they feed on minute water organisms, but some how the fish got itself wrappedup in the line, firmly attached.

All of the six paddlefish stocked were 25 pounds or over when they went into the lake. Four were stocked in 1963 and two more in 1973.

Conservation summary

The Conservation Commission has endorsed the addition of an area in Taney County known as Glades Wilderness to the National Wilderness Preservation System.

It would be Missouri's first entry into the federal system of areas that are left in a natural condition. The Commission also asked for study of five other areas, all largely within the Clark and Mark Twain National Forests, as possible additions.

Bluffwoods State Forest between Kansas City and St. Joseph is within a few acres of completion. The Department of Conservation state forest is being bought with federal revenue sharing funds and the area will be open to the public by the beginning of 1976.

State forester Osal Capps says Bluffwoods is a vital addition to the state forest system because it is located near a metropolitan area and because of the loss of nearly two million acres of Missouri woodlands in the last 10 years.

The Conservation Commission holds its regular monthly meeting June 26 at Department of Conservation Headquarters in Jefferson City, beginning at 9 a.m. The meeting is open to the public.

Missouri continues to suffer from pollution. There were 203 spills of harmful materials into Missouri waters in 1974 and 38 pollution- caused fish kills which claimed at least 163,246 fish. Largest single fish kill was more than 57,000 in the Bootheel.

Fish kills

By JOEL M. VANCE
Department of Conservation

If you took Bob Hentges' list of stuff that leaked into Missouri water during 1974, mixed it all up in a glass and offered it to a largemouth bass, he'd spit in your eye.

Unfortunately no one offered the bass a choice...

Hentges, spill officer with the Missouri Clean Water Commission, recently summarized the 203 accidental or unauthorized spills of harmful materials into Missouri waters.

He classified seven as major problems, 56 serious and 140 minor. Gasoline and other petroleum products led the way with 123 instances.

Of the remainder, an incredible variety of substances was spilled, all the way from coconut oil to Vitamin B complex. There was molasses and ammonia and fertilizer and tallow and mercury and nitric acid and pesticides and herbicides and paint thinner and dye and tailings and chlorine and fly ash...the list goes on.

There were 38 pollution-caused fish kills, 30 of which were in streams, the others in lakes. Frank Ryck, Department of Conservation water quality biologist, summarized the sad end of 163,246 fish which dried in 33 kills where estimates were possible.

Pollution affected 37 acres of lakes and 61 miles of stream. Municipal waste discharges did in the most fish, some 77,392, but mine pollution wipted out 47,850. Industrial pollution took 23,304 and agricultural pollution 11,106.

Polluters face several actions in Missouri. If there is a fish kill, the prosecutor in the county where the kill originated can bring misdemeanor charges. In addition, the Attorney General can seek damages. Recently the Clean Water Commission won an injunction suit against a company to prevent any future waste discharges in a small stream.

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians traded pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom to the Atlanta Braves in exchange for pitcher Roric Harrison.

Bear killed

AVA--Missouri has one less bear than it knew it had, but perhaps more than it thinks it has.

The one bear less is one that rummaged in the wrong yard and was shot by a youngster living south of here.

Bears are a protected animal in Missouri and it is illegal to shoot one, but because of circumstances, Bob Cook, Douglas County conservation agent, plans no prosecution on this incident.

The 194-pound black bear was prowling about the back yard of a farm home when the 12-year-old youngster saw it and took direct action.

He shot it between the eyes at 30 feet with a 7 mm rifle. The family, working in a nearby field, immediately rushed home to find the bear dead. They called Cook, who investigated with district supervisor Bill Hailey.

Hailey knows of several bears in Ozark County and feels there are many in the Ozarks, seldom seen because of their reclusive habits.

Frank Sampson, Department of Conservation wildlife biologist, did a 1972 survey of the bear situation in the state and finds there are a number of them, mostly emigrants from Arkansas which had an 11-year stocking program.

Most of the Arkansas bears came originally from Minnesota and maybe were trying to walk home. The bear killed by the AVA youngster had no tags or marks to indicate it had been stocked and Hailey thinks it is native-born.

In Sampson's 1972 report (he hasn't made a survey since and thinks he will wait a year or two before comparing an update with the earlier survey), the most bear sightings came from Carter, Ozark and Taney Counties.

There were a number of cub sightings, indicating reproduction. Sampson felt that large blocks of land with little human activity are scarce enough in Missouri to keep bear populations low.

Conservation Department people emphasize that bears are protected in Missouri and that it is illegal to kill one. Anyone with a bear problem should contact the conservation agent.

Muskies on the way

SWEET SPRINGS--The muskellunge is hard to come by, whether you're catching him or raising him.

Muskies are trophy fish in Pomme de Terre Reservoir, the only lake in the state with a good population of the northern trophy fish (Lake of the Ozarks has a few).

Current record is 27 pounds, four ounces, a very respectable musky anywhere in the country.

Barring calamity, the lake will get a stocking this fall of a number of potential state record muskellunge. The Department of Conservation's warm water hatchery at Blind Pony Lake near here is expecting a shipment of 3,000 muskies about 2-½ inches long.

Hatchery personnel will raise the muskies to about 5-9 inches and release them this autumn.

In addition, Stockton Lake will receive the survivors of a batch of 10,000 tiger muskies, a cross between muskellunge and their cousin the northern pike.

"We're planning to release about 5,000 tiger muskies in Stockton," says Charles Hick,, superintendent of hatcheries for the Conservation Department. "The usual survival is about 50 per cent in this type of operation and we're starting with 10,000 fish."

Two bills pass

DEATH PENALTY, CHILD ABUSE BILLS GAIN LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL

JEFFERSON CITY - The House passed and sent toGov. Christopher S. Bond last week the mandatory death penalty bill. The vote was 122-32.

The measure, which gained Senate approval May 29, mandates execution for persons convicted of "unlawfully, willfully, knowingly, deliberately and with premeditation" killing another person.

Bond said he would decide on whether to sigh or veto the bill after consulting with Atty. Gen. John Danforth on the bill's constitutionality. The governor called for the reinstatement of the death penalty in an address to the legislature in 1973. However, he has not repeated that request since.

The last person to be executed in Missouri's gas chamber was Lloyd Leo Anderson of St. Louis on Feb. 26, 1965. A nderson was convicted for the murder of a teenaged boy during a drug store robbery.

Also last week, the House passed a child abuse bill that previously had been amended and passed by the Senate. The bill now goes to Bond's desk.

The measure provides immunity from civil and criminal liability for those who report child abuse incidents in "good faith".

Rep. Kenneth Rothman (D-St. Louis), the bill's sponsor, called it a "model bill" for the rest of the nation.

He says that without such a law 10 per cent of the unreported child abuse cases in Missouri during the next year could end up as deaths. He also says another one-third of those cases could result in permanent brain damage.

Passage of the bill would bring the state $7 million per year in federal aid.

The uproar caused by the Equal Rights Amendment came to an end, for this session, at least, with the Senate's 20-14 defeat of the measure last week. ERA supporters do not expect to mount another attempt to gain the measure's passage until 1977, when a new crop of legislators will sprout up on Jefferson City.

One senator said the vote was closer than it would have been if the Senate had voted the way it really felt.

He said some senators who voted for the bill did so only because they had committed themselves before they knew much about ERA. Some ERA's supporters, he said, would have been its opponents if they could have changed their positions without endangering themselves politically.

The Senate also began consideration of a bill designed to restrict corporation farming in Missouri. The bill, which passed the House earlier in the session, would protect individual farming interests in Missouri from large corporations. It would permit only families to engage in farming activities along with "authorizzed farm corporations" who receive at least two-thirds of their income form farming.

This measure, in effect, would prevent large companies, like International Telephone and Telegraph, from establishing company- owned farms in the sttate. However, the bill does permit those corporations already operating farms in the state to continure to do so.

The measure was initiated a year ago when the legislature became concerned about the possible location of a large hog farm, operated by a Chicago corporation, in northeast Missouri.

Exempted from the bill would be corporations that grow poultry, forest croplands, vegetables, grain used solely for brewing and nursery plants.

Senate sources indicate that the bill will gain approval, and be sent to the governor..

Salvation Army to open summer camp

ST. LOUIS - The Salvation Army's summer camp program will officially open on June 17 when a special boys' camp will be conducted at the Army owned and operated 800-acre Camp Mihaska grounds near Bourbon, Missouri. At least 20 boys, age 13-16, are referred to Major Roy Rowland, divisional correctional services officer for the two-state Midland Division, by probation officers for participation in this week of camping.

This week of boys camp precedes two separate one-week periods devoted specifically to senior citizens. Campers will enjoy the outdoors, crafts, music and, of course, ompanionship of their peers.

In July, Salvation Army Corps- Community Center camping is scheduled. Campers from Salvation Army units throughout Missouri and Southern Illinois will gather in four separate groups up to 200 in number, a week for each group.

Each camper will choose a variety of activities suited to his individual interests.

Activities include musical instruction, Bible study, nature lore, hiking, camping, swimming, campcraft and fishing.

Persons who wish to participate in this summer camping program may receive more information by calling their local Salvation number 533-6861.

Family camps are featured in August, a program coordinated through the Army's family Servie Department. Grandparents, mothers and their children are selected by application to enjoy a week in the outdoors. Applications may be obtained from the Family Service Department, 2827 Clark Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63103.

Over 2,500 campers are expected to visit the campsite this summer. Camp Mihaska is equipped with four-bed dormitory rooms; each building contains modern bathroom facilities and hot showers.

The dining room is open throughout the summer, serving three meals daily. Free milk is provided by the United States Department of Agriculutre's Special Milk Program to all children without regard to race, color or national origin.

Evil of Tobacco

The English shipped the first blacks from Africa to Virginia in 1619, 12 years after the founding of the Jamestown settlement. In the first 40 years there were no more than 300 black slaves — all lowly labor was done by white indentured servants. But by the 1680s with the need for many more workers in the tobacco fields, blacks were brought in to the colonies at the rate of 60,000 a decade.

Dear Allen:

Thanks for your letter indicating the interest of Sikeston in the All Missouri Certified City Program. After the first of July, we will be expecting to hear from you regarding a meeting date so that the program can be totally discussed.

Best of luck in the community's effort in promoting a one cent city sales tax. Many communities around the State have implemented this process and are finding it certainly worthwhile. One thing that it does do, from the standpoint of economic development, is that it provides a greater base of income and stabilizes the property tax, which is something all manufacturers are interested in. This is quite a sales promotion that a community can use when talking with industrial prospects.

If we can be of any assistance, don't hesitate to call.

Best regards,
Bill Borgmeyer
Program Coordinator

Dear Allen:

Thanks for your letter indicating the interest of Sikeston in the All Missouri Certified City Program. After the first of July, we will be expecting to hear from you regarding a meeting date so that the program can be totally discussed.

Best of luck in the community's effort in promoting a one cent city sales tax. Many communities around the state have implemented this process and are finding it certainly worthwhile. One thing that it does do, from the standpoint of economic development, is that it provides a greater base of income and stabilizes the property tax, which is something all manufacturers are interested in. This is quite a sales promotion that a community can use when talking with industrial prospects.

If we can be of any assistance, don't hesitate to call.

Best regards,
Bill Borgmeyer
Program Coordinator

The Prayer

"That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ." (1 John 1:3)

PRAYER: Lord, You are our friend. Help us to realize we need nothing more than Your fellowship provides. Thank You, God, for the Christ. Amen.

Evil of Tobacco

The English shipped the first blacks from Africa to Virginia in 1619, 12 years after the founding of the Jamestown settlement. In the first 40 years there were no more than 300 black slaves — all lowly labor was done by white indentured servants. But by the 1680s with the need for many more workers in the tobacco fields, blacks were brought in to the colonies at the rate of 60,000 a decade.

Mr. C.L. Blanton
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

For the second consecutive year, I am writing to Mr. James L. Pasley, Director, Missouri Tourism Commission, to the name "Big Springs Region" being used to include the former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the former "Delta Area."

I feel that if the latter areas are to be incorporated with the former "Big Springs Country" that some other name should be adopted for the important block of counties that include Bonne Terre, Flat River, Farmington, Fredericktown, Ste. Genevieve, Perryville, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston, Kennett, Caruthersville and Arbyrd, Missouri. I appreciated your reply a year ago when I first wrote to the Commission on this matter.

My suggestion is (1) To give what is called "Big Springs Region" another name or (2) Better yet give our block of counties its own descriptive name to aid us to more effectively attract tourists to our section of the state. See the 1974 and 1975 Missouri Vacation Guides. "Big Springs Region" is appropriate only for the former "Big Springs Country" in and around Big Spring State Park near Van Buren.

A tearsheet from the Farmington News for May 9, 1975 is enclosed to show my feelings on the matter.

Cordially yours,
Albert Karsch

MISSOURI tourism is a big asset to the state we love. The headline for the Missouri Tourism Commission advertisement that is appearing in newspapers is entirely appropriate. It advises readers to "Seek out the untold secrets of Missouri." That is exactly what you will have to do to find many of the attractions in our part of the state that for the second consecutive year has been dumped by members of the commission into "Big Springs Region."

UNTIL last year, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Madison, Perry, Bollinger and Cape Girardeau counties, together with portions of Jefferson, Washington, Iron and Wayne counties, were always known as the "Old Settlement Playgrounds." The name was descriptive of an area that embraced Farmington, which had the first Sunday school west of the Mississippi river; Ste. Genevieve, the oldest permanent settlement west of the Mississippi; Bonne Terre with its old Bonne Terre Mine, a popular tourist attraction; Fredericktown and its Millstream Gardens; Cape Girardeau with its nearby McKendree Chapel, the Trail of Tears state park, and Cape Rock.

INCLUDED in the area were also Taum Sauk Mountain, the highest point in Missouri; the Bollinger county mill and covered bridge; Iron county and its famous Elephant Rocks. In this historic area, too, falls the city of Perryville, which was the home of Arthur Bond, football captain of the Missouri Tigers during our University days, and father of Missouri Governor Christopher (Kit) Bond. At that time, Big Spring, near Van Buren, America's largest single-outlet spring with a maximum daily flow of 846 million gallons, was in "Big Springs Country." The latter name was appropriate for an area that included Big Spring state park, Alley Spring state park, and Round Spring and Blue Spring.

BUT now what had been "Big Springs Country" is Big Springs Region" swallowing up not only the "Old Settlement Playgrounds" but also the former "Delta Area," the home of Dexter, Sikeston, New Madrid, Malden, Caruthersville, Kennett, Steele, and of Missouri's lowest point of 230 feet near Arbyrd in the very southwest corner of the state's famous Boot Heel.

MEMBERS of the Missouri Tourist Commission, who made the change dropping this area, of all places, into "Big Springs Region," have little in common with us and apparently fail to recognize our distinctly different environment. Those on the Commission are Chairman Peter F. Herschend of Silver Dollar City (how near is that to Farmington?); Rep. Robert Ellis Young, vice chairman, of Carthage who is a member of the state's House Appropriations Committee; Sen. Emory Melton of Cassville; Rep. Earl L. Sponsler of Cabool; Stephen White of Kansas City; David A. Beliles of Hannibal; James L. Risner, Jr., of Osage Beach and Sen. Lawrence J. Lee of St. Louis. The only member living anywhere near our area is Lee (D) of St. Louis, who is the Senate's majority leader.

IF the Commission felt it needed to reduce the number of so-called "vacationlands" in the state to seven for 1974 and 1975, it should have adopted an entirely different name than "Big Springs Region" when it eliminated the "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the cotton land of the "Delta Area" and combined them with the former "Big Springs Country."

THOSE with an opinion on the harm being done to tourism promotion in our area, and the unfairness of the name of "Big Springs Region" for the big block of counties in this portion of Southeast Missouri, can write to Mr. James L. Pasley, director, The Missouri Division of Tourism, P.O. Box 1055, Dept. MO75, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

ACCORDING to the Commission's newspaper advertisement, "Some secrets are sweeter when you discover them on your own." If the Commission is using taxpayers money to promote the state's tourism, we want our former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the "Delta Area" better publicized, and not labeled with a name that is designed to pull visitors in Missouri to the foreign country around Van Buren, Mo. Mentioning some of our area's features in the attractive new 1975 Missouri Vacation Guide is not enough as long as the term "Big Springs Region" is used to incorrectly designate our part of the state.

Dear Mr. Editor,

A wise and provident God gave us a land and in the land he provided everything we need, but stupid and greedy men circumvented the way of life that we were amply provided with and changed our life's pattern to another type for which we were not provided. Hence we are in an unnatural situation. We at one time were 100 per cent self sufficient, we had all the sources of raw energy we needed, but our planners were not satisfied so they began to lead us out into uncharted directions, where we have gotten deeper and deeper in the quagmire of other dependency on other peoples and other lands for our needs, when we still have unlimited supplies of the best materials for our needs.

Firstly we discarded our steam locomotives on our railroads, in favor of the oil energized power. We don't have sufficient oil but we do have unlimited coal, and as to health, coal smoke is not harmful to health, but on the contrary is an aid to health for many reasons. While exhausts from oil is harmful to health.

Secondly we discarded the trolley or the street car as was known by when there was no poisonousness exhaust fumes, flooding the atmosphere. The trolley was comfortable fast and clean, and the later models as were they in St. Louis were quiet, so what have we accomplished. Nothing, but to put ourselves in a desperaate situation. But there is a return to our independence if we so choose. The Gov't. must take over our rail systems, and kick out the inefficient mismanagement, return to a source of energy for which we have ample supply and finally free ourselves from the shackles of dependency on others for our needs.

But there is a question — Do we have the Leadership to lead us back to Americana? I wonder

C. L. Crider

To The Editor:

This editorial taken from "Today's Farmer" magazine tells the truth concerning our high food prices.

G. B. Greer

COULD 'MIDDLEMEN' TIGHTEN BELTS?

Remember the explanations for food price increases a year or so ago? Rising farm prices got most of the blame.

But there was more to the story-as must now be apparent to anyone who looks behind the supermarket price tag.

Prices received by farmers have dropped in eight of the last 12 months. They're now averaging about 15 percent BELOW a year ago.

Meanwhile, retail food prices have continued to climb. They're now averaging about nine per cent HIGHER than a year ago.

While that was happening, the cost of moving food from farm gate to check-out counter climbed 19 percent. Why?

Costs of processing and distributing food have continued to rise, we're told. Prices paid for labor, equipment, fuel, transportation, etc., are higher now than a year ago.

To farmers, that explanation does not quite scour. Farmers also are paying more now for labor, equipment, fuel, fertilizer, etc.

In the current situation, farmers again are tightening their belts-striving for even greater efficiency. Is it not reasonable to expect some of the same from middlemen-in ther interest of lessening this country's inflation-recession problem?

Are food processors and distributors earnestly striving for increased productivity and efficiency? Are they trimming waste and expense at every possible point? Or is the middleman role now dominated by interests so big, so powerful and so oligopolistic that they can pass along all costs-necessary or needless-ignoring the plight of farmers and consumers whom they pretend to serve?

One can't help but wonder.

Perhaps food industry investigations now being launched by the U.S. Congress and the U.S. Justice Department will provide some answers.

To The Editor:

The remarks made last week by the Missouri State Commissioner of Education concerning the downgrading in the St. Louis schools' rating from AAA to AA are instructive. They indicate that our educational establishment, up to and including the highest administrative levels in the state, is method oriented instead of goal oriented.

The evaluation of a school should be based on the quality of its students and not on how much money can be run through the treadmill.

The largest single item in the Missouri State budget is for elementary and secondary education. Since state funds account for approximately 41 per cent of total school expenditures, we have an empire that spends about one and a half billion dollars a year. This does not include higher education.

Dr. Mallory's remarks indicate that the primary interest of those to whom we have granted a virtual monopoly in the formation of our children's minds and characters is the spending of more and more money.

An evaluation of this monopoly with its attendant downgrading of parental influence on their own children is long overdue.

Dear Sir:

A string of defeats has left feminists and other supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment wondering what went wrong on the road to ratification. The latest setback is in Missouri Senate (Bless 'em).

Lucille Shriver of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women says "I wish we knew, I still think it's a matter of education."

IT IS A MATTER OF EDUCATION. When women learn the facts, they turn AGAINST ERA, not for it. This proves two important points: (1) Victories can be won when people wake up and work! (2) We cannot relax our efforts. Opposition of ERA was more vocal and better organized this year. Church groups, including Mormons and fundamentalist groups took a more active role in opposition, urging rejection of ERA on religious grounds.

However, new efforts to push ERA over the top are in the works. Even in Missouri this means that plans must be made to intensify the work of education of women. This is what it takes for a final victory. Our Committee will continue to supply material to anyone who wants it. The ERA supporters have an almost unlimited supply of money to spend on lobbying; but we who are opposed must work to win. Our cause has an appeal that money can't buy.

WE, THE FUTURE AND GOD

We are at a time in our lives when we have to decide what the future holds for us. This is a very trying time, especially when so many of the young people find it hard to communicate with their parents, thus causing a generation gap.

This is a time when we need God. This is very true in times of trouble and weakness. For only with God can we find true happiness and freedom from our earthly trials.

In our daily lives, we hear and see nothing to hold on to in life and have turned away from God. These are the people who are unhappy and turn to drugs and violence. We must combat these sufferings with faith and love. We must help them.

It is up to you, the people of tomorrow, to start today to change the world and improve it. This can only be achieved when everyone is at peace with themselves. There can be no peace without HE who created us. Share with HIM your troubles and let HIM guide you. Tell HIM of your joy and increase HIS.

Don't keep to yourself things which may seem trivial to someone else but are in fact very meaningful to you. Jesus died for us and was sent here to help us. Let HIM help!

To most people, friendship is very important, as it should be. It is up to all of us to see that everyone is happy. We, here at Girls State, can meet many new friends, have a lot of fun, and learn from this experience. This could not have happened without GOD.

POKING IN THE PAST

I have memories
Of the past.
Once I lived
At the base
Of a hill
And played
In the woodlands there.
Much later, I returned
To that very same hill
And found almost nothing--
Nothing to welcome me.

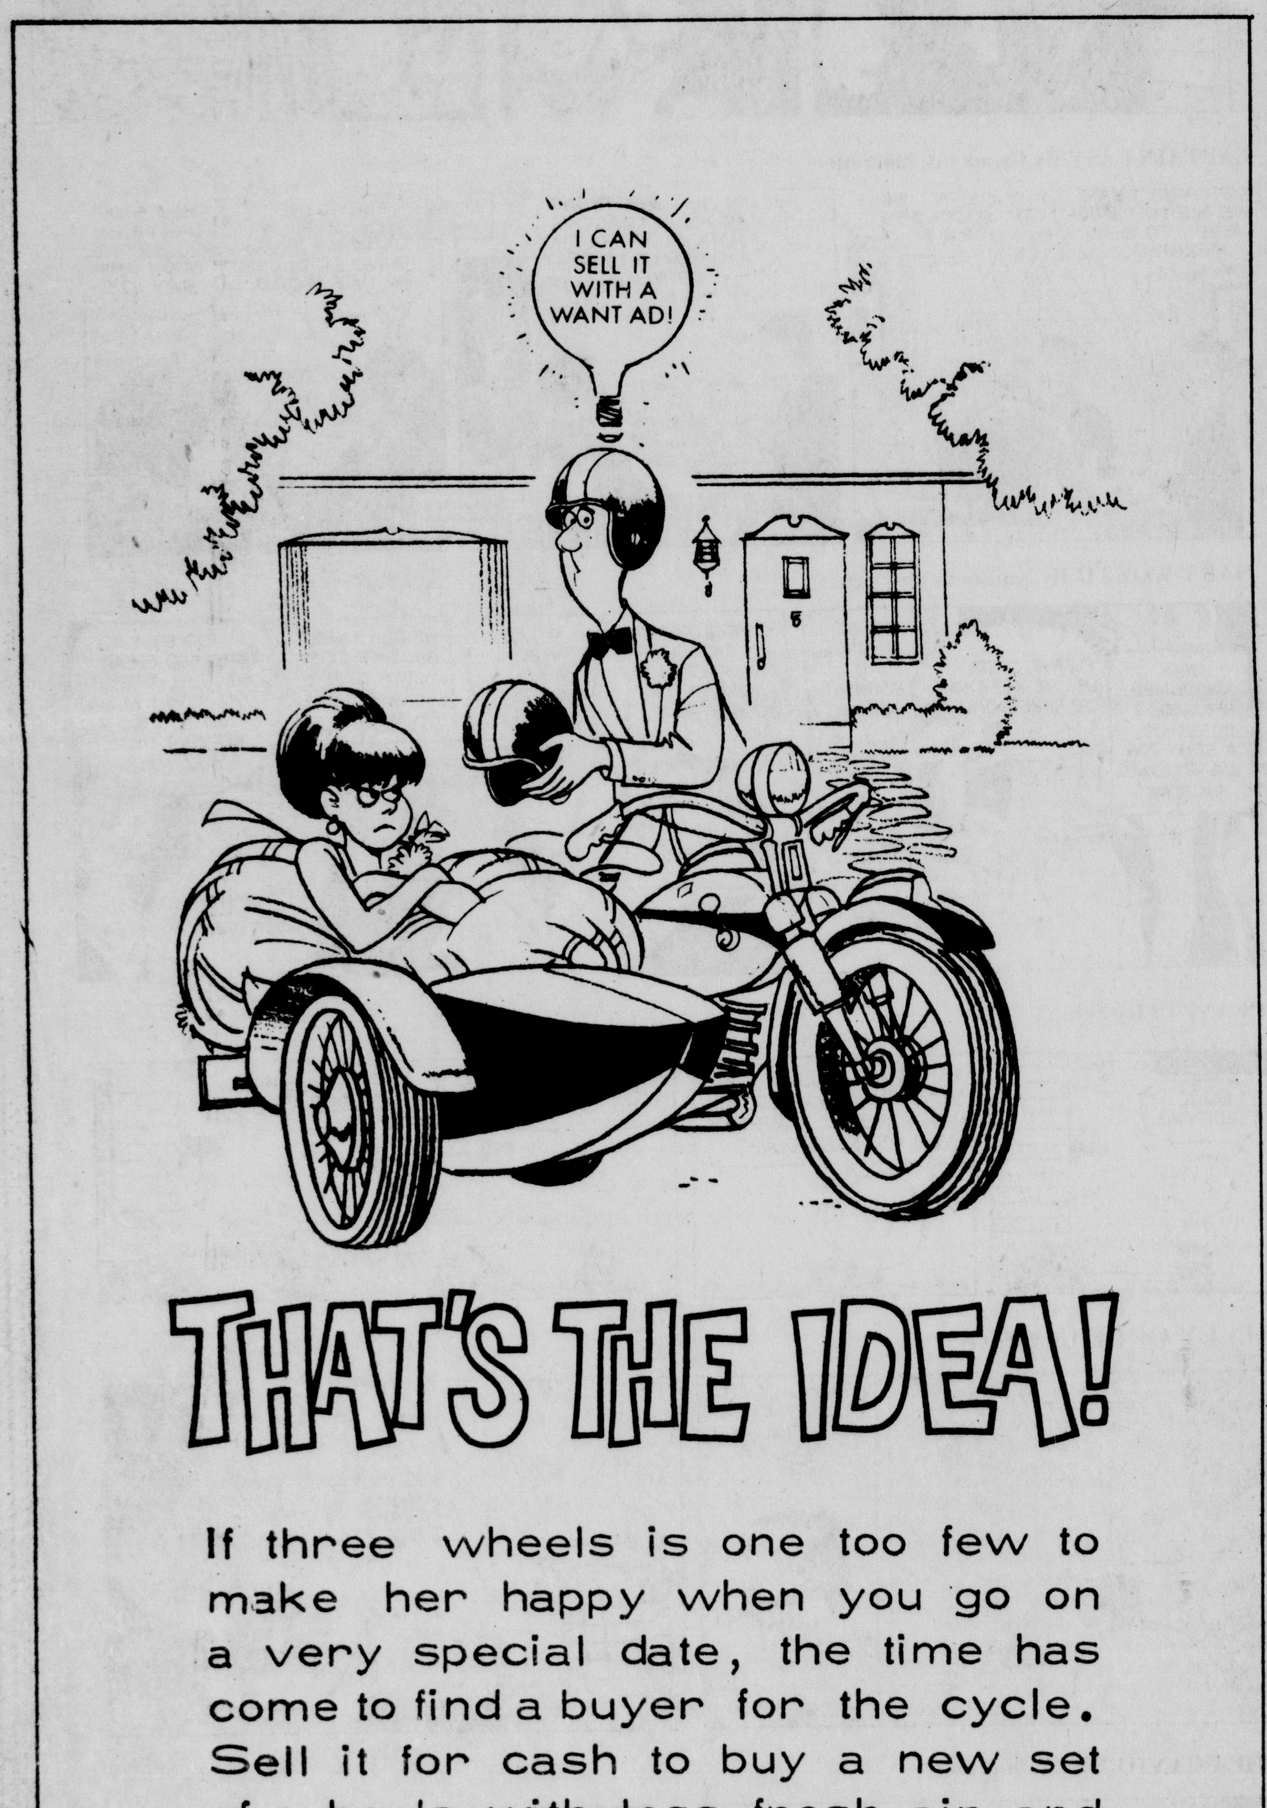

At the crest of that hill,
There's a new home,
Modern and majestic--
All aglow.
Do the people up there
Know it's really my hill
That I staked out
Long ago?

Oh, they own it
And I'll try
Not to complain.
But they've covered
MY frogpond
With artificial silt
And planted alien plants
On its banks.
How will I ever
Really explain
To my little ones
Just what it's like
To sit at its edge
And play games with tadpoles
On a warm spring day?

Can I teach them
What my parents taught me
Now that it's gone
Or "improved"?
It was just a big hole
To many who never roamed
Those woodlands as a child.
I wish I could show others
My science lab
Where a curious scholar
Learned before she read.

My pond is gone,
But the past
Is still there,
Patiently waiting
To be discovered.
Time may still my voice
And dim my eye
And freeze my brain
'Til I bow
To humility and pain.
But my memories--
My memories will be
Hard to repress.

Mr. C.L. Blanton

Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

For the second consecutive year, I am writing to Mr. James L. Pasley, Director, Missouri Tourism Commission, to the name "Big Springs Region" being used to include the former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the former "Delta Area."

I feel that if the latter areas are to be incorporated with the former "Big Springs Country" that some other name should be adopted for the important block of counties that include Bonne Terre, Flat River, Farmington, Fredericktown, Ste. Genevieve, Perryville, Cape Girardeau, Sikeston, Kennett, Caruthersville and Arbyrd, Missouri. I appreciated your reply a year ago when I first wrote to the Commission on this matter.

My suggestion is (1) To give what is called "Big Springs Region" another name or (2) Better yet give our block of counties its own descriptive name to aid us to more effectively attract tourists to our section of the state. See the 1974 and 1975 Missouri Vacation Guides. "Big Springs Region" is appropriate only for the former "Big Springs Country" in and around Big Spring State Park near Van Buren.

A tearsheet from the Farmington News for May 9, 1975 is enclosed to show my feelings on the matter.

Cordially yours,

Missouri Tourist Commission

MISSOURI tourism is a big asset to the state we love. The headline for the Missouri Tourism Commission advertisement that is appearing in newspapers is entirely appropriate. It advises readers to "Seek out the untold secrets of Missouri." That is exactly what you will have to do to find many of the attractions in our part of the state that for the second consecutive year. has been dumped by members of the commission into "Big Springs Region."

UNTIL last year, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Madison, Perry, Bollinger and Cape Girardeau counties, together with portions of Jefferson, Washington, Iron and Wayne counties, were always known as the "Old Settlement Playgrounds." The name was descriptive of an area that embraced Farmington, which had the first Sunday school west of the Mississippi river; Ste. Genevieve, the oldest permanent settlement west of the Mississippi; Bonne Terre with its old Bonne Terre Mine, a popular tourist attraction; Fredericktown and its Millstream Gardens; Cape Girardeau with its nearby McKendree Chapel, the Trail of Tears state park, and Cape Rock.

INCLUDED in the area were also Taum Sauk Mountain, the highest point in Missouri; the Bollinger county mill and covered bridge; Iron county and its famous Elephant Rocks. In this historic area, too, falls the city of Perryville, which was the home of Arthur Bond, football captain of the Missouri Tigers during our University days, and father of Missouri Governor Christopher (Kit) Bond. At that time, Big Spring, near Van Buren, America's largest single-outlet spring with a maximum daily flow of 846 million gallons, was in "Big Springs Country." The latter name was appropriate for an area that included Big Spring state park, Alley Spring state park, and Round Spring and Blue Spring.

BUT now what had been "Big Springs Country" is Big Springs Region" swallowing up not only the "Old Settlement Playgrounds" but also the former "Delta Area," the home of Dexter, Sikeston, New Madrid, Malden, Caruthersville, Kennett, Steele, and of Missouri's lowest point of 230 feet near Arbyrd in the very southwest corner of the state's famous Boot Heel.

MEMBERS of the Missouri Tourist Commission, who made the change dropping this area, of all places, into "Big Springs Region," have little in common with us and apparently fail to recognize our distinctly different environment. Those on the Commission are Chairman Peter F. Herschend of Silver Dollar City (how near is that to Farmington?); Rep. Robert Ellis Young, vice chairman, of Carthage who is a member of the state's House Appropriations Committee; Sen. Emory Melton of Cassville; Rep. Earl L. Sponsler of Cabool; Stephen White of Kansas City; David A. Beliles of Hannibal; James L. Risner, Jr., of Osage Beach and Sen. Lawrence J. Lee of St. Louis. The only member living anywhere near our area is Lee (D) of St. Louis, who is the Senate's majority leader.

IF the Commission felt it needed to reduce the number of so-called "vacationlands" in the state to seven for 1974 and 1975, it should have adopted an entirely different name than "Big Springs Region" when it eliminated the "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the cotton land of the "Delta Area" and combined them with the former "Big Springs Country."

THOSE with an opinion on the harm being done to tourism promotion in our area, and the unfairness of the name of "Big Springs Region" for the big block of counties in this portion of Southeast Missouri, can write to Mr. James L. Pasley, director, The Missouri Division of Tourism, P.O. Box 1055, Dept. MO75, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

ACCORDING to the Commission's newspaper advertisement, "Some secrets are sweeter when you discover them on your own." If the Commission is using taxpayers money to promote the state's tourism, we want our former "Old Settlement Playgrounds" and the "Delta Area" better publicized, and not labeled with a name that is designed to pull visitors in Missouri to the foreign country around Van Buren, Mo. Mentioning some of our area's features in the attractive new 1975 Missouri Vacation Guide is not enough as long as the term "Big Springs Region" is used to incorrectly designate our part of the state.

Dear Mr. Editor,

A wise and provident God gave us a land and in the land he provided everything we need, but stupid and greedy men circumvented the way of life that we were amply provided with and changed our life's pattern to another type for which we were not provided. Hence we are in an unnatural situation. We at one time were 100 per cent self sufficient, we had all the sources of raw energy we needed, but our planners were not satisfied so they began to lead us out into uncharted directions, where we have gotten deeper and deeper in the quagmire of other dependency on other peooples and other lands for our needs, when we still have unlimited supplies of the best materials for our needs.

Firstly we discarded our steam locomotives on our railroads, in favor of the oil energized power. We don't have sufficient oil but we do have unlimited coal, and as to health, coal smoke is not harmful to health, but on the contrary is an aid to health for many reasons. While exhausts from oil is harmful to health.

Secondly we discarded the trolley or the street car as was known by when there was no poisonousness exhaust fumes, flooding the atmosphere. The trolley was comfortable fast and clean, and the later models as were they in St. Louis were quiet, so what have we accomplished. Nothing, but to put ourselves in a desperaate situation. But there is a return to our independence if we so choose. The Gov't. must take over our rail systems, and kick out the inefficient mismanagement, return to a source of energy for which we have ample supply and finally free ourselves from the shackles of dependency on others for our needs.

But there is a question — Do we have the Leadership to lead us back to Americana? I wonder

To The Editor:

This editorial taken from "Today's Farmer" magazine tells the truth concerning our high food prices.

G. B. Greer

COULD 'MIDDLEMEN' TIGHTEN BELTS?

Remember the explanations for food price increases a year or so ago? Rising farm prices got most of the blame.

But there was more to the story-as must now be apparent to anyone who looks behind the supermarket price tag.

Prices received by farmers have dropped in eight of the last 12 months. They're now averaging about 15 percent BELOW a year ago.

Meanwhile, retail food prices have continued to climb. They're now averaging about nine per cent HIGHER than a year ago.

While that was happening, the cost of moving food from farm gate to check-out counter climbed 19 percent. Why?

Costs of processing and distributing food have continued to rise, we're told. Prices paid for labor, equipment, fuel, transportation, etc., are higher now than a year ago.

To farmers, that explanation does not quite scour. Farmers also are paying more now for labor, equipment, fuel, fertilizer, etc.

In the current situation, farmers again are tightening their belts-striving for even greater efficiency. Is it not reasonable to expect some of the same from middlemen-in ther interest of lessening this country's inflation-recession problem?

Are food processors and distributors earnestly striving for increased productivity and efficiency? Are they trimming waste and expense at every possible point? Or is the middleman role now dominated by interests so big, so powerful and so oligopolistic that they can pass along all costs-necessary or needless-ignoring the plight of farmers and consumers whom they pretend to serve?

One can't help but wonder.

Perhaps food industry investigations now being launched by the U.S. Congress and the U.S. Justice Department will provide some answers.

To The Editor:

The remarks made last week by the Missouri State Commissioner of Education concerning the downgrading in the St. Louis schools' rating from AAA to AA are instructive. They indicate that our educational establishment, up to and including the highest administrative levels in the state, is method oriented instead of goal oriented.

The evaluation of a school should be based on the quality of its students and not on how much money can be run through the treadmill.

The largest single item in the Missouri State budget is for elementary and secondary education. Since state funds account for approximately 41 per cent of total school expenditures, we have an empire that spends about one and a half billion dollars a year. This does not include higher education.

Dr. Mallory's remarks indicate that the primary interest of those to whom we have granted a virtual monopoly in the formation of our children's minds and characters is the spending of more and more money.

An evaluation of this monopoly with its attendant downgrading of parental influence on their own children is long overdue.

Dear Sir:

A string of defeats has left feminists and other supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment wondering what went wrong on the road to ratification. The latest setback is in Missouri Senate (Bless 'em).

Lucille Shriver of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women says "I wish we knew, I still think it's a matter of education."

IT IS A MATTER OF EDUCATION. When women learn the facts, they turn AGAINST ERA, not for it. This proves two important points: (1) Victories can be won when people wake up and work! (2) We cannot relax our efforts. Opposition of ERA was more vocal and better organized this year. Church groups, including Mormons and fundamentalist groups took a more active role in opposition, urging rejection of ERA on religious grounds.

However, new efforts to push ERA over the top are in the works. Even in Missouri this means that plans must be made to intensify the work of education of women. This is what it takes for a final victory. Our Committee will continue to supply material to anyone who wants it. The ERA supporters have an almost unlimited supply of money to spend on lobbying; but we who are opposed must work to win. Our cause has an appeal that money can't buy.
